Half-Starved Folk Besiege Relief Posts

By LARRY ALLEN
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BARCELONA, Jan. 28—Insurgent troops sought to complete quickly their conquest of all Catalonia today by pushing beyond Mataro, north of Barcelona, as long lines of half-starved people besieged relief centres here.

Rings of soldiers armed with bayonets were necessary to keep order in breadlines, so large and insistent they threatened to storm the food supply centres.

Insurgent General Franco is attempting to push the civil war to an early conclusion while caring for the needy, and then begin the task of reconstruction.

Throughout the night a thousand truckloads of food from all parts of insurgent Spain entered this conquered city in an effort to end a pressing food shortage. They carried capacity loads of bread, milk, canned meat and other provisions.

Insurgents said they hoped the breadlines would disappear within a week.

Many people were said to have lived for months on only lentils, water and a little bread.

The job of maintaining order was turned over to a special corps of 18,000 armed men. A newly-formed municipal council was ordered to clean up Barcelona streets, littered with debris and tons of paper during the welcome to Franco's soldiers when they entered this former government capital without a struggle Thursday.

Some women knelt in prayer on the sidewalks after getting their rations.

Tens of thousands packed Barce-

FIRM STAND EXPECTED BY CHAMBERLAIN

Prime Minister To Make What May Be Most Important Speech

LONDON, Jan. 28—Prime Minister Chamberlain in what may be his most important speech since the Munich settlement of last September, is expected to take a stiffer stand toward the land - demanding dictatorships, but to appeal once again for peace by negotiation.

Returning to his home town of Birmingham, the elderly prime minister will have an opportunity to "appeal to reason" in the rapidly deteriorating European situation before Chancellor Hitler addresses the Reichstag in Berlin Monday night.

MAY RESERVE COMMENT

It will be Mr. Chamberlain's first opportunity for a public statement on the apparent threat to the democracies by insurgent triumphs in Spain and the bitter Franco-Italian situation. ## Premier Asserts No Election Here Until Year 1940

Aberhart Says Alberta's Social Credit Government Will Press on With its Interim Program to a Successful Finish

When Alberta controls its own credit so that it can be issued in terms of the country's need, then Alberta will be able to furnish its own money without cost or interest charges and will be able to pay off its debt in the course of a few years, Premier William Aberhart declared in an address on Friday.

He was the main speaker at a public mass meeting held in the Empire theatre on Friday night as a climax to the third annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League.

The premier also definitely announced that there would be no election in Alberta until 1940 unless it was forced upon the government. He referred to this several times.

Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry was the other speaker on the program.

A. E. Goodwin, president of the league was in the chair. John Guild, president of the Edmonton Constituency Social Credit Association also was on the platform.

About 1,000 attended the meeting.

Premier Aberhart took as the theme of his address, Social Credit in 1939.

Declaring that his subject was prophetic n character, he said that "Most people are anxious to look into the future. They go to crystal gazers and fortune tellers. The looking into the future is shocking at times. Never look far ahead."

He said that 1939 is not far ahead, but it was just before 1940 and 1941 "and we know what the

CANADA NOW DICTATORSHIP AVERS BYRNE

Canada is a dictatorship and the administrators of the financial system the dictators, it was charged by L. D. Byrne, technical adviser to the Alberta Social Credit Board, in an address on Friday to the third annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League.

"They and they alone are responsible for the results of their administration and they must be held responsible if this financial dictatorship is to be overthrown," said Mr. Byrne.

He spoke at a public sitting of the convention, which is in progess at the Masonic Temple.

"When you analyse this situation you will realie that the essential nature of the task confronting us if we are to avert disaster is to change from a social order in which the people constitute the sovereign authority. Only democracy will give us that," he said.

Turning his attention to the money situation, Mr. Byrne declared that "I want to indicate to you the nature of the action which you can expect the money power to take.

"In the first place you want to have a clear idea in your mind of its objective. The objective of international finance is world domin-

Great Powers Face Test Of Armed Strength

Fall of Barcelona Means a Showdown of Strength in Mediterranean—Starting Signal Given

By CLIFFORD L. DAY
British United Press. Exclusive Cable to the Edmonton Bulletin

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The triumphant march of Spanish insurgents through the hills of Catalonia shook all Europe today as the great powers faced an inevitable showdown on strength in the Mediterranean.

Fall of Barcelona to the armies of General Francisco Franco—a spectacular and possibly decisive military triumph in the civil war—was only the starting signal for which the big nations had been waiting.

It threw open a vast horizon of diplomatic struggle between the opposing blocs of democracy and totalitarianism.

Intensity and importance of that contest for dominance in the new Europe may be indicated swiftly by two events:

Italy's Demands Made At France's Expense

1—Great Britain's campaign to forestall a new "crisis" as a result of the demands of Italy for greater influence at expense of France in the Mediterranean.

2—The support Germany will give her totalitarian partner, Italy, in seeking the Fascists' "natural aspirations" in the Mediterranean and the extent of the new Nazi demands in eastern Europe. The answer to these questions is expected in Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag Monday on the sixth anniversary of his rise to power.

Final Answer For Power Rests On Berlin

Thus again, in the contest for dominance, the final answer shifts back to Berlin, where Hitler has maintained official silence in regard to Italian Premier Benito Mussolini's bid to reap his share of the totalitarian profits at the expense of France and Britain in the Mediterranean.

But this time there is another factor that must weigh heavily. Britain has given every indication of having reached or at least neared the end of concessions under Chamberlain's appeasement program.

Britain Still Remains Invincible

At his recent Rome conferences with Mussolini, the British prime minister—spurred by the demands of France and a large element in his own country—stood his ground and the talks ended in a stalemate.

Thursday night, Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary of Britain, echoed a recent statement by the prime minister when he publicly warned Europe's totalitarian powers that the British Empire was invincible—that the British "will to resist" could not be overcome.

Cabinet Shuffle Takes In Naval Aide, Agric Chief

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Prime Minister Chamberlain today added to his cabinet Britain's foremost naval strategist and one of the leaders of the country's agricultural industry.

In a general reshuffle of portfolios, Admiral of the Fleet Lord Chatfield, the man responsible for the present acknowledged efficiency of the Royal Navy, is made minister for the co-ordination of defence, succeeding Sir Thomas Inskip.

Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, former president of the National Farmers' Union, is appointed minister of agriculture, replacing W. S. Morrison.

Sir Thomas Inskip, who had been the target of unrelenting criticism in the key defence post, becomes secretary of state for the dominions, taking over one of the tw portfolios held by Malcolm MacDonald, who now will devote his whole energy to Palestine and the other problems of the colonial office.

Making way for Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, Mr. Morrison will continue in the cabinet as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, a sinecure post. He will assist Lord Chatfield in defence co-ordination and will answer for the admiral in the house of commons.

Earl Winterton is dropped from

LONDON FEARS WEEK-END MAY MAKE HISTORY

LONDON, Jan. 28—"Instinct as well as evidence points to the present weekend as a possible turning point in current international affairs," the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said today.

"Great issues are at hazard and ominous tendencies are coming to a head," the editorial said. "Today the Prime Minister speaks at Birmingham—three days before his important statement to the house of commons—and his words are a prelude to the speech which the German Fuehrer is to deliver in the Reichstag on Monday, and in which he is expected to declare the immediate intentions and future policy of the Reich.

"On those two utterances the destiny of Europe and even of civilization may hang."

PROGRAM FOR LEGISLATURE NOW STUDIED

Legislation, Budget Will be Brought Down at Session Opening Feb. 9

Formation of the legislative program for the legislative session opening on Thursday, Feb. 9 is largely occupying the time of Premier Aberhart and members of his cabinet, it was learned Saturday.

Along with this program, is the preparation of the estimates. Expectation is that both the estimates—the budget—and the major portion of the legislation will be brought down early in the session, so that an early prorogation can take place to clear decks for the visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth.

One of the important bills to be brought in at the session will be that providing for redistribution and which may leave the strength of the house as it is at 63 or reduce it to 56. Under the chairmanship of Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, a special committee is working on a report on redistribution, and legislation along the lines of the report will be brought into the house.

Another important bill to come into the house will be the housing act, which will be complementary to one passed at the

COURT AWARDS WIDOW $2,500 IN HALES CASE

Settlement of the supreme court action brought by Mrs. Cyril C. Thomas, Beverly, against Charles Hales, Edmonton salesman, seeking damages for loss of her husband, C. C. Thomas, school teacher, was announced Saturday by the law firm of Clement and Whittaker.

Under the terms of the settlement judgment for $2,500 was entered against Mr. Hales, this amount to include all costs of the action.

The judgment, concurred in by Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie, provides that, after payment of the legal costs, that the money be divided between the widow and the children, the custody of the children's share to be vested with the official guardian.

The court action arose out of an accident on Jasper avenue at the Thornton Court intersection on July 17, 1938, in which an automobile operated by Mr. Hales collided with the deceased, causing injuries from which he died.

VALIDITY ACT ON SECURITIES TO BE TESTED

Validity of the Provincial Securities Interest Act will be tested in a court action which opens in the supreme court Thursday before Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd. The action is brought by the Independent Order of Foresters, Toronto.

A fiat to bring the action was recently granted by the Lieutenant Governor in Council on application of the law firm of Milner, Steer, Poirier, Martland and Bowker, acting for the Foresters Order.

Other cases listed for the civil division sittings of the supreme court which opens Monday are three decrees absolute, four decrees nisi of divorce and four civil actions.

In the supreme court, criminal division, Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie will preside with a jury to hear charges of theft by conversion against Raymond Pritchard, Edmonton, and theft charges against Jacob Meyer, Edmonton.

Anglo-Canadian owns the well subject to a 25 per cent. gross royalty.

Another Anglo-Canadian well, No. 4, is now drilling on the property cornering on that on which No. 3 well came in. This No. 4 well is now at 1,159 feet and is encountering the same geological formations met by No. 3, with every indication that it will also be a producer.

FINANCES OF BEVERLY ARE SAID STRONG

Position of Town Improves During Past Year, Annual Meeting Told

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

BEVERLY, Jan. 28.—Annual meeting of town and school district was held in the town hall Friday night with the largest attendance of electors that has been present for a number of years. W. E. Curtis was chairman and N. Rushton, official administrator, was present to give an account of his stewardship and to answer questions.

For the first time in more than 15 years current accounts were all met out of current revenue, as evidenced by both school and town balance sheets. The town still faces a debt of close to $145,000, of which the main items are $64,775 in unpaid debenutres, $33,400 for unemployment relief and $24,500 owing to the various Edmonton hospitals, but Mr. Rushton expressed the expectation that he would be able to make favorable terms with the town's creditors with regard to some reductions in the accounts.

C. E. Floden asked for the endorsation by the electors of a delegation from various local groups that has arranged a meeting with government officials to try to have roads from the city to the proposed new air and sea-plane base on the Saskatchewan river run through Beverly. The proposal was endorsed.

OUTPUT FROM GAS WELLS TO BE LIMITED

CALGARY, Jan. 28.—W. F. Knode, chairman of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board, last night announced that next week the board will issue an order cutting gas production from 108,000,000 cuboc feet daily to approximately 53,000,000 cubic feet.

The new order will limit output from gas wells strictly to "market needs," said Mr. Knode. All waste gas flares in the gas-producing area of Turner Valley will be eliminated, he added.

Only flares left in the field will be those from crude oil wells, where waste gas which had been used in lifting oil to the surface will be burned until a repressuring scheme is put into effect which will return the waste gas from crude wells into the limestone, the chairman stated.

B.C. GROWERS OPPOSE MOVE FOR SETTLERS

Declare Subsidized British Farmers Would Be Liability

VERNON, B.C., Jan. 28—The British Columbia Chamber of Agriculture today voted opposition to any subsidized scheme to bring settlers to the province.

The resolution was submitted to the chamber's third annual convention here by the central Okanagan Vegetable Growers' Association.

Sir Henry Page Croft, British parliamentarian, last summer toured British Columbia to study potentialities of the province for absorbing British settlers under an assisted migration plan. Subsequently he reported in England that conditions in British Columbia are favorable to his scheme.

Many fermers who receive assistance to migrate are really "pseudo-farmers," President E. D. Barrow of Sardis, B.C., said. He added that once the period of subsidizing expired "there's nothing for the government but a whole pile of trouble." Mr. Barrow, former British Columbia minister of agriculture, said he had some "very convincing" experience along that line during his term of office which ended in 1928.

CALGARY, Jan. 28.—A short-lived romance that culminated in the marriage of Fred Oneski, 20, and Olive McNutt, both of Calgary, Jan. 9, was rudely broken in police court yesterday, when Magistrate D. C. Sinclair sentenced Oneski to a penitentiary term of two years and six months for receiving stolen property, and Olive McNutt to six months' imprisonment for bigamy.

The pair were arrested shortly after their marriage on charges of possessing a quantity of jewelry said to have been stolen from local residences. Oneski was also found guilty of being in possession of burglar tools.

West Not In Same Need Of Seeding Aid Dunning Says

The minister of finance was replying to a question from E. E. Perley (Con., Qu'Appelle), who urged the minister to bring in legislation to cover seed provision early enough that seeding operations would not be delayed.

Nazi Germany's Borders Increased: Census Is Boosted

By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to the Edmonton Bulletin

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Nazi Germany will be six years old next Monday and, if you were a German returning home for the first time since 1933, you might fail to recognize the Fatherland.

Opponents of the Nazi regime at home and abroad emphasize many unfavorable developments as a discredit to the new Germany o as illustrating weaknesses of the Reich. Nazi leaders recite an impressive list of achievements.

Since Fuehrer Adolf Hitler came into power, strange new words and terms have crept into the German language to express the ideas and functions of the Nazi regime. On the new maps are names of cities and mountains, lakes and rivers and forests, that never were on a German map before.

The population of Germany has been boosted from 65,000,000 to 80,000,000. The area of the country has increased from 181,000 square miles to 225,000 square miles by expansion of the frontiers to include Austria and the Sudetenland.

LABOR SHORTAGE

There is a skilled labor shortage instead of the 6,000,000 unemployed of 1933. Working hours have been increased in some industries although paradoxically probably a million men are still jobless because of seasonal and other factors.

Greater Germany is on the march to the tune of Nazi piping. The Nazi press emphasizes it is a forward march regardless of the fact there are frequent shortages of such things as butter and coffee and that substitute materials are widely used.

One way of expressing what has happened in Germany is to say that the theories of a political leader who evoked smiles a decade ago have now become realities.

Hitler has made a religion of dynamism on the theory that a nation that remains static must die. As the seventh year of Nazism begins, he has probably greater absolute power than any man in German history.

THE OTHER SIDE

In general terms, that is the Nazi version of what has happened to Germany, a picture of industry and progress and triumphs, climaxed by the spectacular rise of the Reich in 1938 to dominance of eastern Europe; to a place of equality in world councils that had been denied it since the World War.

There is another side of the picture. It shows the price Germany has paid not only in many billions of dollars spent but in less material terms such as loss of individual rights, racial intolerance, drastic suppression of political opposition, strict control of the press.

Nazism has pursued an official anti-Semitic policy designed to bring about the economic ruin of 600,000 Jews and cause them to migrate from Germany.

CHURCH CONTROL

Nazism has brought the Protestant church under party control and deprived the Catholic church of all except purely religious functions.

Nazism has molded the newspapers and magazines and radio—every method of influencing public opinion—into a single instrument for promoting the objectives of the state.

Nazism has ended all political opposition and suppressed all other political organizations, throwing many of their leaders into concentration camps.

Nazism has more than doubled taxes, yet also more than doubled the official public debt which is now officially put at $10,000,000,000 but is privately estimated at about two or three times that figure.

10,000 PLANES

Thus, neutral experts seeking to estimate what has happened to Germany in the last six years are forced to balance many factors against such achievements as the Reich's great new network of concrete highways, the army built up to a point where probably 1,900,000 trained men could be put in the field, the aerial fleet estimated at 10,000 fighting planes, and a navy now planning to revive on a greater scale the dreaded U-boat squadrons that came so close to starving England during the World War.

But most frequently of all the questions asked by visitors to Germany is: "Are the Germans really behind Hitler? Are they happier than before he came into power?"

Neither question can be answered definitely. But it can be said with reasonable accuracy that the people are behind Hitler in the sense that they prefer certainty to uncertainty. It can be said that even those who were not enthusiastic about Nazism are getting used to it; and it can be said less positively that every day sees a decrease in the number who believe that a military dictatorship or a return to the republic or the monarchy would be a preferable alternative.

Bull Renouncing Cash Bequests Paper Claims

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 28.—The Milwaukee Journal said Friday W. Perkins Bull, Toronto barrister, apparently is renouncing all bequests under the will of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, in an out-of-court settlement whereby he would receive $125,000 cash and jewelry valued at $50,000.

William Horlick Sidley's contest of his mother's will was halted Wednesday at Racine with announcement that attorneys had reached an agreement.

U.S. FACTORIES RUSH FRENCH PLANE ORDERS

600 War Machines May Be Bought In Emergency

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—The French government is contemplating purchase of 600 United States-made warplanes as an emergency measure in the face of low production at home.

One hundred Curtis pursuit planes are in process of delivery. An equal number of the same type were ordered last week, and a third order is being studied by the French air ministry.

In addition, 300 ultra-fast American two-engined light bombers, capable of being used for combat after they have dropped their bomb loads, probably will be purchased by the French.

One plane of that type under consideration, manufactured by the Douglas Aircraft Company at Santa Monica, Cal., crashed Monday with a representative of the French government riding as observer. It had undergone most of its acceptance tests.

Some time ago Great Britain was reported considering additional purchases of American war planes, and the French orders already on the books in the United States and in prospect evoked the question of whether a joint French-British air rearmament program was not being based in part on the productivity of American factories.

Already on order from the British are 200 light bombers and 200 training planes.

lona's main thoroughfares last night to hear scores of speeches. The demonstrations seemed to increase near midnight, with thousands bringing newly-acquired food supplies to stay for hours and cheer Franco.

Insurgents estimated nearly 2,000,000 persons, or at least 500,000 more than Barcelona's normal population, had been in want for months.

Arms Rushed To Border Line As Gates Open

LE PERTHUS, France, Jan. 28-Between 4,000 and 5,000 French troops were rushed to the Spanish border today as a tragic horde of refugees from governmental Catalonia poured into France.

The refugees, fleeing the Insurgent armies who rapidly drove northward from Barcelona, started crossing the border at 8 a.m. and within an hour 5,000 had jammed across the line, completely swamping French guards.

Raoul Didkowski, prefect of the border department, told higher officials he was unable to carry out their orders to let only women, children and old men in unless troops were ordered to use their guns, if necessary, to keep out younger men.

Of the first 5,000 who came through Le Perthus pass when the refugee flood gates were opened only a few hundred, however, were men of fighting age.

1936 session of the house. This new measure will seek to remove obstacles to the loan companies granting loans in Alberta for housing. The principle of the bill will be to exempt housing loans from provisions of the Debt Adjustment Act.

A new relief act also will be brought in, consolidating and amending relief legislation already on the statute books.

There will be some minor amendments to the Debt Adjustment Act, to bring it more in line with easier transaction of business.

REFUNDING

So far as can be learned, the government does not propose to bring in any bill on refunding at the coming session, as negotiations now under way in this direction have not yet reached the stage where any legislation is required.

From present indications, there will be no further legislation dealing with the government's interim program, nor will there be a further Social Credit bill.

The oil and gas conservation bill passed at the last special session will not likely require any amendment at the coming session.

A private bill to be introduced will seek to permit dental mechanics to take impressions and fit teeth, but will not interfere in any way with the practice of dentists.

The session will be preceded on Feb. 7 and 8 by a Social Credit members caucus.

All two-cent stamps, or their equivalent value, throughout the world, are printed in red through international agreement.

BICKERING IS DENOUNCED IN HOUSE FRIDAY

Members Condemn Excessive Partizanship and Recriminations

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 28—Excessive partizanship, inter-provincial bickering and recriminations among public men all came in for condemnation in the house of commons yesterday. They were denounced by members in all major groups as a waste of time and as tending to prevent efficient administration and constructive action to right the country's economic ills.

Miss Agnes MacPhail (U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce) was one of the most positive critics when she described the early-session verbal duel between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, as "drivel."

LITTLE LESS SEVERE

F. C. Mackenzie (Lib., Neepawa) was only a little less severe when he said Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs at times seemed more realistic than the debates in the house.

William Goldin (Lib., Huron South) predicted a continuation of carping criticism between and against public men would result in revolution. Karl Homuth (Con., Waterloo South) pleaded for a cessation of inter-provincial hostility. Joseph Bradette (Lib., Cochrane) thought Miss MacPhail's speech was more constructive than some rabid partizan utterances heard in the house.

Along with this self-criticism as debate on the speech from the throne proceeded came a variety of suggestions for improving conditions throughout the country, covering youth training, farm loans, reforestation and reduction in governmental expenditures.

"I believe that constructive criticism is necessary and one of the finest things we have but if this carping and destructive personal criticism, this attempt to undermine and cast suspicion on our public men is continued on a wholesale scale it will eventually lead to revolution of one kind or another," said Mr. Golding.

VIEWED WITH SUSPICION

"It has always seemed strange to me that a person in a profession or in any other walk of life may be a respected citizen today but if he enters politics tomorrow every word he utters and every act that he performs will be viewed with suspicion. This is an unfortunate situation that should not exist."

"If we will forget this inter-provincial disunity and the hostility of the provincial governments to the federal government," said Mr. Homuth, "if we will forget our political bickering and get together and deal with this matter from the standpoint that there is no east and no west in Canada, no Quebec and no Ontario but just one nation, willing to give and take to give more and take less, if we do that there is no reason why we cannot cure many of the ills that afflict us today without interfering with the sacredness of provincial rights."

Miss MacPhail said the sad thing about the sharp exchanges between Mr. King and Dr. Manion and between Mr. King and Premier Mitchell Hepburn were that the people believed what each man said about the other.

cess, plunges into debate on the Spanish and other foreign issues.

Mr. Chamberlain speaks about 9:30 p.m. (2:30 p.m. M.S.T.). His remarks will be broadcast.

Reports reaching London that Hitler would renew his demands for colonies, possibly also referring to Italian and Polish desires for land, did nothing to brighten the international picture, already complicated by the belief held in some quarters that the Rome-Berlin axis, strengthened by the fall of Barcelona, are preparing to attempt a joint "squeeze play" against France and Great Britain.

The past two days have seen a burst of speeches by British cabinet ministers warning the world how powerful Britain is and that her rearmament is advancing at full speed.

SPEED RECRUITING

In an effort to speed army recruiting, the war office announced the appointment of Major-General H. C. B. Wemyss to the newly-created post of director of mobilization. He had been assistant adjutant-general.

From various officials Britons got these assurances about rearmament:

That new ships for the navy, including many small ones, will be launched at the rate of more than one a week;

The prediction aircraft production will be trebled this year;

A report so many have joined the civil air guard—36,000—that no more applications will be accepted except from those with previous flying experience.

Rabbit Disease

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 28.—Dressed Ontario rabbits are being carefully examined by the Detroit Board of Health before they are put on sale in that metropolis. About 200 a day were going across the border recently until it was found about 25 per cent of these were infected with tularemia, a rabbit disease that infects humans—sometimes with fatal results.

Visits the East

LOUIS PODERSKY

president of the Crescent Furniture Ltd., has returned from a buying trip to the East, comprising visits to the large furniture centres in Eastern Canada and the United States. He spent considerable time at huge furniture expositions at Montreal, Toronto and Chicago, the latter featuring a huge furniture mart of twenty-seven floors of furniture depicting the trend of modern day furniture and the season's coming styles.

Favorable trade agreements, according to Mr. Podersky, have brought the industries of Canada and the U.S. closer together; particularly noticeable in the furniture industry.

"We do not think it feasible," said Mr. Podersky, "to purchase huge volumes of furniture in the United States, but I did secure some outstanding manufacturer's samples of the very newest trend in furniture for the coming season of exceptional merit and distinction. The furniture factories throughout the East are looking forward to the new year with increased optimism and I was particularly gratified on my visit to the East to hear so many inquiries about Edmonton and the country north of this city."

The new furniture purchased by Mr. Podersky is arriving daily, with still some "on the wheels" and will be on display during the course of the Crescent's annual February sale.

Dictators Rush To Congratulate Franco On Victory

BERLIN, Jan. 28.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler Friday congratulated Insurgent General Franco on the capture of Barcelona.

TOKYO, Jan. 28.—Prince Kotohito Kan-In, chief of the Japanese Imperial general staff, yesterday sent a cable of congratulation to Spanish Insurgent General Franco on the capture of Barcelona. The Japanese war minister General Seishiro Itagaki cabled Premier Mussolini of Italy expressing his pleasure at the fall of Barcelona "from the point of view of joint defence against the comintern."

PRAGUE, Jan. 28.—The Czecho-Slovak cabinet council decided yesterday to recognize the government of Insurgent General Franco and break off relations with Premier Juan Negrin's Spanish government.

Fishermen Boats Mobilize At Esquimalt to Train For Duty in Wartime

VICTORIA, Jan. 28.—Mobilization of a fishermen's reserve to the Royal Canadian navy got under way today as rows of British Columbia fishing boats chugged into the naval harbor at nearby Esquimalt.

Today and Sunday, 40 of the small gasoline vessels will congregate here for a month's manoeuvering designed to train them to help defend the Pacific coast in wartime. Two hundred fishermen, including 40 skippers, will receive training in tactics, gunnery and other subjects during the next month.

A similar unit of fishermen's reservists is to be established on the Atlantic coast.

The fishing vessels, ranging in length from 45 to 60 feet, are coming here from Prince Rupert, Vancouver and the Fraser River. The fishermen will be sworn in Feb. 1.

Lieut.-Commander Colin Donald is in charge of the reserve. He will command H.M.C.S. Skidgate, flagship of the fishing fleet.

Re-shuffle

the cabinet as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, but will continue in the government as paymaster general, the junior ministerial position which carries no salary.

Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, a descendant of one of the builders of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is replaced by the Earl of Munster as under-secretary at the war office, but it is understood another position will be found for him.

This switch amounts to a vote of confidence in War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, who has been the target of criticism by Lord Strathcona and two other junior ministers, R. S. Hudson and the Marquess of Dufferin and Ava. It is tangible evidence of the Prime Minister's faith in Mr. Hore-Belisha.

It is reported other changes involving junior minister will be announced next week. They will probably involve Mr. Hudson, who is secretary to the department of overseas trade.

OFFERED RESIGNATION

Lord Winterton offered his resignation from the cabinet because when he entered it in March, 1938, it was on a temporary basis so Viscount Swinton, who was then secretary of state for air, might be represented in the House of Commons. That arrangement was made unnecessary when Sir Kingsley Wood was appointed to succeed Lord Swinton.

Lord Winterton, who is an Irish peer and sits in the lower house, will continue as chairman of the inter-governmental committee on refugees.

STEADY CRITICISM

The reason for Mr. Morrison's demotion is that there has been a steady stream of criticism over the government's agricultural policy. This has caused concern in view of the approaching general election, which if not held this year must come in 1940 when the present parliament finishes its constitutional five-year term.

Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith is considered to be a practical farmer, who is more likely to stem the tide of criticism against the administration. He jumps straight from the back benches of parliament to the treasury bench, where the cabinet ministers sit.

London business houses have set up "baby shelters" where mothers may park the youngsters for a penny an hour.

Drive On Smallpox

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 28.—About 1,600 children were expected to be immunized against smallpox in the current vaccination drive in the schools. More than 2,500 brought permission from their parents, pleasantly surprising health officials.

Premier Asserts No Election Here Until Year 1940

technocrats and others have said about 1941. It is to be a financial collapse."

LAST CHANCE

This, he said, meant "that 1939 is therefore, our last chance to redeem ourselves. That is important."

He said that his topic was suggested by a common expression often heard on the street today, namely, "It's great to be living today."

Continuing, he said that "This is too often said by people who are quite indifferent to conditions. They know nothing of the suffering and privation of many people today. They have never realized the nerve-racking strain of unemployment, hardship and relief. They have not heard of the undernourished, half-starved children with no hope ahead of them.

"They say this because they feel somehow the dawn of a new era.

"We shall never see the dawn of a new era unless we take an active interest in attaining it. Folding one's arms and smugly saying 'we are at the dawn of a new era' will not get us anywhere. The year 1939 therefore, must be a year of action.

"May I say, therefore, that I feel we shall have to press on during the next year with our interim program, forging forward to that period of accomplishment when Social Credit may be demonstrated.

"I suppose that we shall have to face a federal election this year, but as I see it now, we shall have a number of things to finish before we ask for the approval or disapproval of the people.

PROBLEMS TO SOLVE

"The year 1939 has still some problems to solve. First, there is the great problem of seeing that our people all have the opportunity to obtain sufficient food."

Here Premier Aberhart quoted from Dr. John Orr of Aberdeen University and from Dr. Adela Smith, assistant director of health and education, New York City, to show that there is some need of improvement.

Attention was called to the statement of the secretary of state, Cordell Hull which he made to Congress, namely, "Nearly 80 per cent of the world's population of 2,000,000,000 people is living below the poverty line."

Continuing, the Premier said, "The whole matter becomes all the more serious when we read the report of the world's committee on relief."

He then read the following from the report: "2,400,000 human beings died of starvation in 1934 and 1,200,000 human committed suicide because of economic distress. At the same time, immense quantities of grain, coffee, sugar, meat and rice were deliberately destroyed to keep up the market price."

PROPOSING SOLUTION

Going on from here, the Premier said that "1939 is a year when these facts should be made known to all the people, for no one who knows them would ever consider neglecting to do his part to remedy them.

"The adherents and supporters of Social Credit are not following a will o' wisp. They are proposing the only solution for the present deplorable state of affairs.

"1939 still offers but one solution for it all. It isn't sabotage or destruction of food stuffs. It isn't the imposition of quotas banning production. Away back in the 18th century it was proposed.

"The London Times, commenting upon Lincoln's establishment of a true national currency called 'green backs', contained this striking declaration, 'If that mischievous financial policy which had its origin in the North American Republic during the late war should become indurated down to a fixture, then the government can furnish its own money without cost. It will pay off its debt. It will have all the money necessary to carry on its commerce.

"'It will become prosperous without precedent in the history of civilized government. That government must be destroyed or it will destroy every monarchy on the globe.'

"Such a statement as that should give us all cause to consider the real import of such a statement."

PEOPLE WARNED

The Premier said that before Lincoln's day, Thomas Jefferson, a previous president of the United States, warned the American people in no uncertain terms.

Jefferson had said "If the American people ever allow private banks to control the issuance of their currency, then first by inflation and then by deflation, these corporations will gradually deprive the people of all their property until their children will wake up homeless on the continent their fathers conquered."

In continuing, the Premier said that "The truth of this whole matter is gradually getting into the minds of most of our people. They are realizing that we must have control of our own credit so that it may be issued in terms of the country's need.

"Then Alberta will be able to furnish its own money without cost or interest charges. Alberta will be able to pay off its debt in the course of a few years.

CHEAP MONEY

"Our producers will be able to have the money needed for production at a small charge for handling and taxes can gradually be reduced, while social services may be provided for the welfare of the people.

"This arrangement will make Alberta prosperous without precedent in the history of civilized governments.

"Are such results not worth striving for?

"Our interim program in 1939 should bring to our doors the opportunity of demonstrating the principles of Social Credit.

"The people now must decide how far and how quickly they desire these developments to take place.

"I wonder if 1939 will bring us the vision of a new era of stabilized prosperity."

Dealing with the question of an election he said that "1940 will be the year of election, unless one is forced this year—and I hope not."

He preceded his remarks on an election by referring to rumors both in this city and Vancouver that there would be a general election this year and that the coming session would be the last before such election. The rumors also were that Social Credit would be defeated. He asked what the old line parties had to offer compared to Social Credit.

Mr. Manning took as his subject, "Where We Have Been Going." He discussed what he termed were the four periods since Social Credit came into being in Alberta.

Outlining these, he said that the first was the educational lecture period, that time when he and Premier Aberhart held meetings at many points and particularly in the southern part of the province.

18 MONTHS' WORK

Next was an 18 months' period following the 1935 general election, which was a period of setting the Alberta house in order as a result of conditions prevailing when the government took office.

The third period, he said, was that in which the government embarked on its program of new legislation, which resulted in various acts being ruled ultra vires by the courts or disallowed by the Dominion government.

The fourth period was that which was in progress at present, with the interim program occupying the centre of attraction and enabling people to make use of their own credit.

The minister pointed out that use of treasury vouchers was voluntary and that "We are not going to force you to use the treasury branches or vouchers. We have no power to do that."

Answering criticisms that the government had not paid a $25 a month dividend after three years in office, he retorted that "If they will keep their hands off our legislation, we'll pay the dividends so fast that it will make their heads swim."

He declared the interim program afforded people an opportunity to utilize their own credit in a new form and he dwelt on Alberta's industrial development with increasing payrolls through purchase of Alberta-made goods and the obtaining of a three per cent consumers bonus on same, available through the treasury branches.

Socred Candidates To Be Given Approval

Climaxing a lengthy debate, the third Alberta Social Credit League convention, now in session at the Masonic Temple, approved a clause in its amended and revised constitution, that Dominion and provincial Social Credit candidates be chosen by an advisory board, appointed by the board of management. It was also decided that zone organizers are to attend the meeting at which the candidate is to be chosen, but they will not have voting powers.

Discussion of the revised constitution occupied the greater portion of the discussion periods of both Thursday and Friday.

In the course of Friday's discussion, the convention ratified amendments to the constitution which have the effect of abolishing the zone council and also the divisional conferences.

TWELVE ZONES

In place of these there will be no more than 12 zones in each constituency with a zone organizer and constituency supervisor, directly responsible to the board of management.

Increase in representation of groups at provincial and constituency conventions was approved. Instead of one delegate from each constituency as has been the case to date, in future, there will be three from each single member riding and six from multiple member ridings, elected at constituency conventions.

In all 21 amendments to the constitution of the women's auxiliary were taken into consideration by the management board for revision and to fall in line with the revised league constitution.

A. E. Goodwin, president of the league, declared that the method of selecting candidates approved by the convention was "the most democratic possible."

Under the Social Credit method, he said, three or four of the best men available were selected at a constituency convention, after which the final choice would be made by an advisory board appointed by the board of management.

It was pointed out by R. H. Kent, of Medicine Hat, that Premier William Aberhart had carried out, in 1935, this principle of selecting candidates and he thought it was a thoroughly democratic method of selection, while he also observed that the premier was the man closest to the members.

HAVE FINAL WORD

"I believe," said Mr. Kent, "he should always have a final word in the selection of the men who are to work with him. Our Premier has never looked for 'yes' men. He looks for men of vision and understanding who will work with him in the interests of the common people of Alberta."

The Premier spoke on this subject and declared that the most important thing was that a candidate selected be satisfactory to his own constituency and only in the case of a no-decision vote by the local selection committee would the advisory board give the deciding vote.

He declared that "The Advisory Board is not concerned with personalities. It is looking for the best man who will help to put in Social Credit and that is all that matters."

Referring to the unconstitutional practice in old line party conventions, R. Hale of Edson said that complete confidence was needed in the advisory board and the public generally.

E. Ross of Sylvan Lake pointed out that only political opponents had opposition to the Social Credit method of selecting candidates.

CANADA NOW DICTATORSHIP AVERS BYRNE

ation—an undisputed dictatorship of all nations. Between international finance and its objective of universal dictatorship stands the Anglo-Saxon peoples and, in particular, the British Empire.

"It is immaterial to the money power whether it destroys the British Empire or whether it controls it.

"I believe you will see a serious attempt made to increase its control. In Britain a determined effort will be made to oust Mr. Neville Chamberlain in favor of either Mr. Anthony Eden or Mr. Winston Churchill. This would immediately increase the threat of war in Europe—and I leave you to gauge the possible results of an aerial war in which the balance of power is fairly equally distributed between the belligerents within rapid striking distance of each other.

"I believe a determined effort will be made in both Canada and in Australia to centralie control—and to reduce the status of the Provinces and States to those of glorified municipalities.

"These are the two main lines of action which we may expect the Money Power to take. I will not elaborate on them on this occasion—but I warn you to be on your guard.

GENERAL BACKGROUND

"I have had to cover the ground of my talk very sketchily—but, if you have followed me, you will, I think have a general background of the situation.

"I urge upon you:

"1—To beware of the propaganda which is being presented to you as news.

"2—To support every action which will increase your power as an individual citizen, and to oppose every action which weakens your position.

"3—To remember that you are in a war and that you are fighting for your existence. This will require acting under leadership and it will require organization. Make sure that in both these directions you retain control of matters of policy, but leave the questions of administration to those you have set up to lead you.

"4—To oppose in every way you can any attempt at the centralization of control. Hang on to the rights you have and the control which you have. Do not let it be filched away from you.

"5—In the national sphere, to support all actions directed towards giving you sovereign power to determine the results you want to obtain, and to oppose every device which aims at making you the mere puppet of a party machine or some unseen authority which seeks to obtain your acquiesence of the continuance of the present state of affairs.

"6—In the provincial sphere, to press forward with the development of your treasury branch structure with all the energy and enthusiasm you can put into it.

"7—In all things, to continually bear in mind the terrible urgency of the situation—for by your actions you will be deciding not only your fate, but, possibly, the fate of humanity for generations to come.

"It is your responsibility and my responsibility and the responsibility of every person who recognizes the issues at stake to meet this situation with the courage, the determination and the will to win what is demanded of us."

Mr. Byrne declared that international conflict was not between two groups of countries known as dictatorships and democracies but between two strong financial powers. Actually there were no true democracies in the world, he said.

Democracy was a social system under which the administration of people's affairs in all spheres of social life was yielding them the results they wanted. In Canada there was poverty and insecurity, debt, taxation and economic impotence. These were not the results Canadians wanted, he said.

"Canada is a dictatorship and the administrators of the financial system the dictators. They and they alone are responsible for the results of their administration and they must be held responsible if this financial dictatorship is to be overthrown," he said.

"There is the situation. To meet it, effective action must be taken to render the people the supreme authority in determining the results they want. If we are to have a democracy—if we are to escape the threatening chaos of the present social order—then, I suggest, we must make the change by deliberate and orderly action with which the people as a whole are in accord."

It was true that the issue being fought out in the world today was democracy versus dictatorship. But to suggest it was an alignment of nations was to distort the situation, said Mr. Byrne. There were no real democracies in the world but only nations with a varying degree of dictatorship, he said.

"Any alignment which takes shape around the real issue of democracy versus dictatorship must be between the people on the one hand and the forces of dictatorship and reaction on the other," he said. Results were being imposed by finance which were contrary to the wishes of the people, he said.

IMPOSED BY BANKERS

"There national dictatorships which are imposed by bankers through the banks and their subsidiary institutions is centralized on an international scale," said Mr. Byrne. "There are two great international banking groups which, for all practical purposes, dominate all nations."

The European situation had all the appearance of a conflict between the two dominating international banking groups, each striving to jockey Great Britain to their side, Mr. Byrne explained. Certain events, he said, indicated that in one of those dictatorships at least the authority of finance was being challenged.

"The objective of international finance is world domination—an undisputed dictatorship of all nations," said Mr. Byrne. "Between international finance and its objective of universal dictatorship stands the Anglo-Saxon people and, in particular, the British Empire."

Mr. Byrne said it was immaterial to finance whether it destroyed or controlled the British Empire and he believed a serious attempt would be made to control it. He forecast a determined effort to oust Prime Minister Chamberlain in favor of either Anthony Eden or Winston Churchill which, he said, would increase the threat of war in Europe.

JUDGMENT IS RESERVED IN OIL ACT TEST

10-Day Supreme Court Trial On Constitutionality At An End

VANCOUVER, Jan. 28.—Judgment was reserved Friday by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson at conclusion of a 10-day supreme court trial on the constitutionality of British Columbia's Coal and Petroleum Products Control Board Act.

Just before the trial came to an end, Attorney General Gordon Wismer, who conducted the provincial government's case, observed it would be a "very serious thing for British Columbia" if the power exercised by the provincial fuel board under the act were whittled down.

The trial arose when nine gasoline producing and distributing companies complained of a fuel board order calling for a reduction on the retail price of gasoline sold in the province.

ORDER NEVER ENFORCED

The order, never enforced because of a supreme court injunction, contemplated a reduction from 27 to 24 cents a gallon in the basic Vancouver price. Both figures included a seven-cent provincial tax. Reductions as high as six cents a gallon were contemplated for some sections of the province.

The government rescinded the order shortly after the opening of the trial.

KING CANNOT TABLE MUNICH CRISIS DATA

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said Friday in the Commons the government could not table correspondence with the British government during the Munich crisis or preliminary to the negotiation of the Anglo-Canadian trade agreement. Requests for the correspondence had been made by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative leader.

Mr. Mackenzie King said he had communicated with the British government and had received the reply the correspondence could not be published without disturbing the present system of exchanging confidential information between governments.

After reviewing the trade treaty correspondence, Mr. Mackenzie King said he had decided it could not be tabled either. It could not be tabled without the consent of all Empire governments.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con., Kootenay East) said the first British request had been mentioned by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, in the House, and the House was entitled to that document at least.

Bennett Boards Ship Amid Bridal Shower Of Confetti Bombs

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 28.—Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett is a bachelor but when he boarded the liner Montclare Friday for a voyage to his new home in England the former prime minister of Canada was covered with confetti and streamers in true bridegroom fashion.

At the pier Mr. Bennett became entangled with a party sending off a pair of newlyweds. As he started up the gangway he received some of the confetti thrown at the couple. He turned and smilingly waved a salute. This was taken as a signal for a bombardment in his direction.

Mr. Bennett hurried to the steamship directly from a luncheon given by Lieutenant-Governor Murray MacLaren, but despite his rush the liner was kept waiting a few minutes for him. The Montclare was delayed a few more minutes so photographers could take pictures of Mr. Bennett on the bridge.

"We are sorry to see you go," said one photographer. "We are losing both a subject and a good photographic subject."

"I expected you fellows would say something like that," laughed Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett personally carried aboard the liner a silver rose bowl presented to him Thursday night on behalf of New Brunswick citizens. The bowl, wrapped in green flannel when he carried it, bears on one side an inscription sketching his career and on the other an outline map showing places connected with his life in his native province of New Brunswick.

Lord and Lady Rodney and their little daughter, Sylvia, personal friends of the former Conservative leader, were fellow passengers. Lord Rodney—the eighth Baron Rodney—has been farming near Edmonton for some 20 years. The family plans to visit England for a month.

Since discovery of the East Texas oil field in 1930, it has produced more than 800,000,000 barrels of oil. The field is expected to produce a total of 3,000,000,000 barrels.

Vancouver Rink Is In Macdonald Brier

NELSON, B.C., Jan. 28. — R. V. David's Vancouver rink will represent British Columbia in Macdonald Brier competition at Toronto for the 1939 Dominion curling championship.

The Vancouverites last night won the British Consols cup at the British Columbia Curling association's 44th annual bonspiel here, emblematic of the provincial championship.

Members of "Rolly" David's rink are Frank Avery, who skipped the rink in one of its British Consols wins, W. Parker, R. Wickstrom and George Law.

Alberta, British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec are the Canadian provinces which lead in cheese production.

OFFICE WORKERS UNDER SCOPE OF HOURS, WORK, ACT

VICTORIA, Jan. 28—British Columbia's office workers, except those in managerial or confidential positions, will be brought under the scope of the province's hours of work law, it was announced by the provincial board of industrial relations Friday.

Secretary Adam Bell said he has requested representations from employers and employees and others affected before any formal order is passed.

Both men and women in business, commercial, industrial and professional offices will be affected by the proposed new order. Mr. Bell said that most women office workers are already under the eight-hour day, 48 hour week law, as well as men in industrial and mercantile offices.

The new order would cover the remainder of women employees and all men office workers except those in positions of supervision or who are employed in a confidential capacity.

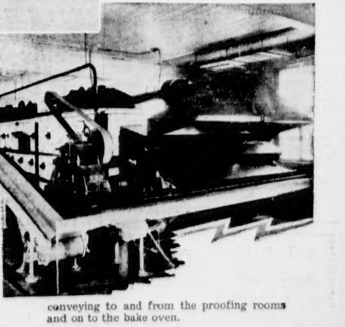
ELECTRICITY AND BREAD

Modern Bakeries Are Powered by Electricity



As time and mankind have advanced, more efficient — more economical methods of making "the Staff of Life" have been developed. New machines have been invented and perfected so that in the modern bakery of today practically every step in the process of making bread is controlled automatically by electrically driven devices.
Here, step by step, we find electricity doing its work, driving the battery of MIXERS . . . the dividers, rounders, moulders . . . conveying to and from the proofing rooms and on to the bake oven.
On the right is shown the mammoth travelling OVEN through which the pans of bread are carried at a controlled speed by electrical conveyor. A loaf of white bread passes through in 35 minutes. Capacity of this oven is 3,500 loaves per hour. From here the freshly baked loaves are whisked away to cooling rooms, then on to the slicer and the wrapping machines.
ELECTRICAL POWER HAS ASSISTED IN BRINGING THE BAKING INDUSTRY TO ITS HIGH POINT OF EFFICIENCY, CLEANLINESS AND ECONOMY.

Production Booming

Last year Alberta oil wells, most of them in Turner Valley, produced 6,752,239 barrels. That was two and a half times as much as the production in 1937, the previous record year. In December the output was 45,000 barrels more than during November. The value of the year's production at the wells was well over $8,000,000.

Conservation measures which were in effect last year, it is thus shown, have not throttled production. That they slowed it down invites conjecture as to what the gross output might have been had they not been in force. That, under restrictive regulations, the barrelage more than doubled in a year, and in December ran far ahead of November, illustrates the speed with which production is expanding, and hints the immensity of the reserves which make such gain possible.

The limit of present production is in fact only the limit of the demand in the area in which Alberta oil can be profitably marketed. If wider markets were available, Alberta could provide them at once with an indefinitely large supply.

The oil "boom" now is in the field—not in the stock market.

A Year After

The policy of appeasement has not taken long to justify the opinion of its critics that it could be nothing better than a policy of postponement. Premier Daladier on Wednesday took the line which Anthony Eden said nearly a year ago should be taken then. Speaking for France and Britain, the French Premier said there will be no further retreat before the advance of the aggressors.

The months which have intervened have been victory months for the dictators. They have gained on every front from recognition of the Ethiopian conquest to the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia and the destruction of representative government in Spain. They are stronger now in man power, territory, resources and prestige; and correspondingly bolder in proclaiming the intent to use their strength for purposes of aggrandizement.

The motives of Chamberlain and Daladier are not to be questioned; and they have gone to great lengths to preserve peace. But in the end they are diplomatically where they were a year ago, facing aggressors unappeased and unappeasable, and compelled to face them with a plain declaration that a further advance means war.

In so far as the situation has changed, it has changed to the advantage of the conspirators, not the advantage of the champions of peace.

Multiple Paying

We are getting plenty of proof these days of the folly of borrowing to excess, and the fatuity of supposing that borrowing at high interest rates can be profitable.

The city on February 1st will pay $871,840 on debt account. But $666,620 of the amount will go to pay interest; only $205,220 to reduce the principal. Out of eight dollars paid, less than two dollars will be struck off the debt. How many times will the amount of debt be paid before it is cancelled entirely? And are the improvements for which the money was spent worth paying for that many times, seeing that most of them will be worn out before they are paid for the last time?

A Board of Review at Saskatoon the other day learned that a farmer borrowed $8,000 in 1919, has paid $9,000 on the debt, and still owes $10,666. The borrower had the debt down to less than $6,000 in 1932. It has gone up $4,666 in the meantime. The point to be noted is that it is not suggested this situation came about because the creditor juggled figures or "put something over". It has resulted from the working out of the terms of the bargain, presumably, with mathematical precision. Figure don't lie when it comes to calculating interest. They just tell the truth, and that is bad enough.

If there is anything in the theory that people learn by experience, getting into debt ought to be less popular in the west for a long time to come.

Investigate — For What?

If members of parliament could divest themselves of partisan aims, a committee investigation into facts and figures of the Bren gun contract might produce some useful information as to the relative cost of having munitions produced in privately-owned factories or Government plants. But demands for an inquiry which are based on pre-conceived notions and clothed in language of suspicion preclude hope of any impartial investigation or publicly useful outcome. A survey staged under such auspices would be fore-doomed to scandal-hunting for political campaign purposes.

Judge Davis said nobody stole any money under the contract or was put in position to steal any. The public accept, and politicians should accept, that decision as final. To suggest the contrary is to condemn the Commissioner as having failed to do his duty or having failed to tell the truth.

Whether the letting of contracts to private firms is the best way to get munitions produced, speedily, cheaply and of good quality, the Commissioner did not say and could not properly have said. That is a matter of policy, which parliament must decide. A fact-finding review by a committee might help to a right decision, though the need is doubtful. A committee fishing expedition, launched in response to a pre-declared hope to discredit Hon. Ian Mackenzie, would be debarred by its nature and origin from producing anything but mud or doing anything to reconcile the taxpayer to the unwelcome fact that he must dig up money to pay for a more elaborate defence system than he has ever required in the past.

A parliamentary committee seldom investigates anything to a satisfactory conclusion. Partisanship and political urges won't let it.

Editorial Notes

Vancouver single unemployed men have volunteered to clean up a section of the city in preparation for the visit of the King and Queen — the section that most needs cleaning up and needs it badly. Men of that type should not be left unemployed.

The province of Manitoba has refunded a 5½ per cent issue of bonds at 3½ per cent, effecting a saving to the taxpayers of $20,000 a year on the $1,000,000 issue. Hon. Charles Dunning may be, as he says, a "sound money man," but the way the Bank of Canada is influencing interest rates downward doesn't prove it.

Abdul Rahim Haj Mohammed and his associated trouble-rousers have fled to Syria, leaving 1,250 of their Palestine followers dead, along with 92 Jews and 70 British soldiers. If the French authorities in Syria can find a good reason to lock up Abdul and his cabinet, the way will be opened to establish conditions in the Holy Land on a basis of justice and in an atmosphere at least free from racial malice—and Mussolini incitement.

How to Stop Dictators

The Nazis publish a newspaper called Der Angriff. One task of its editors is to prove to Germans that political democracy is an inferior form of government to the totalitarian state.

There were six million unemployed in Germany when Hitler came into power. Today there are practically none. The outlook for German youth was black in 1933; now the future is dangerous but full of action. Factory chimneys were cold; now they are belching smoke. (Poetic image; German engineers save the smoke.)

We had better not try to win a contest against dictators simply by shouting about the blessings of "liberty" and "freedom." People do not eat liberty and freedom; these words make no jobs. For every cultivated American liberal who cares profoundly about the Bill of Rights, there are ninety-nine citizens in the lower income groups who care more profoundly about employment and security. Americans have political democracy rooted deep in their folklore, but it is rash to suppose that they are prepared to defend it at the price of permanent economic misery. If we value our liberties of speech, press and ballot, we shall have to make the economic machine work better than it has worked since October, 1929.

Why were Italians converted to fascism? Because they were suffering from intolerable economic conditions, unemployment, insecurity, and were disappointed over Italy's share in the spoils of the Versailles Treaty. They turned to a Strong Man.

Why were Germans converted to Nazism? Millions of them, remember, had been voting a Socialist ticket. They were suffering from unemployment, terrible economic conditions, poor food, savage reparation payments, unending debts to foreigners, the iron ring of Versailles, the middle-class fear of communism. They turned to a Strong Man.

Why do the people of many nations in Europe support dictators, and hang out a "To Rent" sign on their houses of parliament? Because of desperate economic conditions, unemployment, insecurity. Will such conditions produce a Strong Man in France, in England, some day? If they continue long enough, they probably will. There are already signs of it in Paris. They once produced a Napoleon in France, following a Queen who said: "Let them eat cake."

How do European dictators get rid of unemployment? They get rid of it chiefly by putting citizens to work in armament factories and in labor camps devoted to building fortifications. They also put a lot of them directly into the army. Where do they get the money? The government commandeers available savings by forced loans. It also "creates" more money by printing bonds. It makes the banks take the bonds, and then the government draws checks to the amount of the bonds. These savings and "new" money are turned over to the munitions workers and other government employees, who spend them in the stores on pay day. This promotes the sales of storekeepers, wholesalers, manufacturers, farmers. The public spending stimulates private business. Things look prosperous. Unemployment is greatly reduced.

There is no problem of unemployment in Germany. There is none in Italy or in Russia.

We are integrated in land, resources, people. We have no minorities shouting for self-determination. We have to become integrated and unified in facing this grave and difficult task. If we can find an invention, or a series of inventions, to conquer unemployment without piling up a mountain of debt, we shall be as immune to foreign isms and ideologies as an iron dog is to rabies. By the same token, our example will strike home to the people of other countries, uneasy under their Strong Men yet not knowing where else to turn.

In simplest terms, the inventors must find a method which will permit Americans to buy back what they can make. Millions of them cannot do so now because of jams in the price structure, in the debt structure, in the distribution of income, in the flow of savings into new investment. Like Alice in Wonderland, they can just stand and look at the beautiful garden without being able to get into it.

We need an invention that will neutralize, scale down, transform, the present debt burden and prevent it from accumulating in the future: an invention that will lead steadily to a pay-as-you-go economy. A rapidly expanding industrial system can tolerate compounding debt. It did in America from 1830 to 1930. A non-expanding, or slowly expanding system, cannot tolerate it. Business men often express horror at an unbalanced federal budget. They apparently forget that private enterrise as a whole has never balanced its budget, has never been on a pay-as-you-go basis. Net private debt—mostly corporate—has grown from forty billions in 1910 to almost two hundred billions today. By comparison the present federal debt of forty billions is chicken-feed. The 1922-29 boom was reared on private debt, just as the 1933-37 recovery was reared on public debt.

We need inventions that will finance a growth in intensive capital outlays, which raise living standards of a stationary population. Extensive capital outlays for a rapidly growing population are no longer feasible. We need a workable invention to convert bonds into stocks with reasonable justice to all concerned. A stock is seldom paid off as to principal, and carries no fixed interest charge; dividends are disbursed only if earned. Such an invention is urgently needed at this very moment for the railroads. We could use an invention for financing public works, federal, state and local, on a giant revolving-fund basis, without interest charges. As it is now, a city borrows $1,000 for a sewage-disposal plant, let us say. By the time compound interest has been reckoned with, the city will pay back anywhere from $2,000 to $4,000 before the loan is retired.

We need inventions for melting out the rigidities of administered prices. We need inventions for redistributing the national income, through taxation or otherwise, so that more of it will be spent and less of it saved to rot in reserves. We need inventions for improved methods of handling social-security funds, crop controls, collective bargaining.

These are the kinds of things our inventors must tackle. Too many citizens are still unemployed. If proposals for such reform make your hair rise, you are at liberty to go into the laboratory and find better models. The one thing you cannot do, if you want to avoid a Strong Man, is to go on doing nothing.—By Stuart Chase, in The New Republic

The Passing Show
By J. S. COWPER

Sometimes I wish I could assume the lofty air of those who say "You can't believe all you read in the papers." Unfortunately, I know the care that is taken to achieve authenticity in important matters. So I feel a bit troubled at an Associated Press despatch from Geneva of a few days ago, after Chamberlain, Lord Halifax, Georges Bonnet and Count Ciano had met there to discuss Anglo-French-Italian matters. "Informed political sources" said a scheme of appeasement would be offered whereby France would give Italy free port privileges at Djibouti; one or two seats on the Suez Canal board; reduced rates for Italian tonnage through the canal and equal rights for Italians in French Tunisia.

SPARE US THIS DEEP INFAMY!

Britain is to give free port rights to Italy in Zeila, British Somaliland, and "is reported to be considering two methods of lending money to Italy—either directly, or by way of insurgent Spain, which would pay part of the mounting insurgent debt to Rome for war materials."

There are no longer any illusions as to the source of money which nations lend. It is capitalized on the credit of the nation—of the persons who comprise the nation. Cheerful prospect, isn't it, when the credit of Englishmen is proposed to be loaned to Italy to pay for slaughtering men, women and children, from the skies. A few million British pounds paid directly to Italy or by way of insurgent Spain for rent of Italian air and naval fleets (the same fleets that sank British shipping) would help Italy get bigger and better fleets for bigger and better international gangsterism.

What unexplainable differences there are between fathers and sons. The elder Chamberlain would have recoiled at the prospect of trying to appease bullies and blackmailers. Neville Chamberlain resembles his father, Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, about as much as Col. Lindbergh resembles his.

If General Franco and his German-Italian-Moorish armies win over the people of Spain, Spain is destined to be a most unhealthy place for Spaniards. The General is a modern business man who follows modern business methods in his ambition to be a Fascist dictator. In a recent interview to the United Press, he said he had more than 2,000,000 opponents card-indexed in his files, "with proofs of their crimes and names of witnesses." The idea of a mass slaughter of one's enemies after victory isn't a new one. About the time the old Roman republic began to fall to pieces, successive Roman triumvirates had a technique for it. They drew up proscription lists, to which each of the triumvirs contributed the names of all his pet enemies still alive. That, of course, was long before the days of technology and American filing and card-index systems.

A BUSY TIME IF FRANCO WINS

However, Franco won't be bothered with any unemployment problem. With 2,000,000 persons to arrest and try, and a minimum of 4,000,000 witnesses (two to a case) and jobs for police, jailers, judges, counsel, executioners and concentration camp guards, Spain will be a busy place.

The commonsense French don't let billions of francs go out of their country for Irish Sweeps and the support of Irish hospitals. Despite the stark immorality of gambling, they have national lotteries—just as we have church raffles. Last summer, M. Alexis Dupont, retired employee in France's colonial service, died. One of his last purchases was of a ticket in the national lottery (may that sin be forgiven him). Mme. Dupont, frugal widow, thought little of the lottery ticket. She saw to it that Alexis was buried in one of the old white duck suits he had worn on colonial service. It was emblematic of purity and of his service for France.

ALEXIS WAS GOOD TILL THE LAST

In the September drawing, Alexis Dupont's name, like Abou ben Adhem's, "led all the rest." His ticket had won the million franc prize. But where was it? Search of every nook and cranny in the house failed to reveal it. One last hope remained. Mme. Dupont appealed to the authorities. An order was made a couple of weeks ago, to exhume the coffin. There in one of the pockets of the white duck burial suit reposed the missing ticket.

Alexis is now sealed up again in his little wooden house, and Mme. Dupont with a million francs to her credit in the bank is looking for a more comfortable apartment. Alexis will now be able to argue the doctrine that the end justifies the means when arraigned for the sin of purchasing that lottery ticket.

THE BEDFAST HEROES

Some of the cheeriest, bravest, sanest letters that come to me are from bedfast heroes, prisoners of pain. The "shut-ins" have, in quietness and confidence, learned strength of spirit. Apart from the hurly-burly of things, they have caught the still spirit of Divine wisdom.

Nor are the interests of these invalids limited by the four walls of their chambers. They have time to think Kingdom thoughts. Though bodies may be bound to beds, their spirits roam afar, in interest and in sympathy.

Invalids have time to meditate and to pray. That is why many of them are spiritual giants. Limited in body, they are unlimited in soul. Many a busy man's arm has been nerved for struggle by the re-enforcement that has come to him from the prayers of bedfast friends.

For all friends of the suffering Christ, who, with Him, know the secret of the Father's presence, we give thanks today. Amen.

Too often the average Canadian is led to believe that England and the British are somewhat behind the times. This regular television service is one point to remember. The first invention of the incandescent electric lamp by Professor Swan in England, before Thomas Edison; the invention of the linotype by Capt. Drummond of Ottawa before Otmar Mergenthaler; the first flying directly across the Atlantic in a heaver-than-air machine by Alcock and Brown eight years before Col. Lindbergh, are some of the other things in which the British took the lead. —Red Deer Advocate.

Wheat Problem

Editor, Bulletin: May I congratulate your editor in giving thoughtful prominence to one of Canada's major problems of the immediate future—wheat surplus.

In line with so many other of our Canadian products the first tendency is to look afield to see what countries beyond our border might be induced to increase their purchases of wheat from us.

In the process of such bargaining as might be undertaken it might be proposed to pay a government subsidy on all exports. This would be a national contribution towards a wheat grower's difficulties—quite permissable on occasion.

Another outcome of such export efforts might be to give tariff concessions on some other commodity which might be shipped to Canada; again with danger to Canadians attempting to sell competitively in Canada.

A further suggstion is the one I venture to offer—let's use more Canadian wheat in the Canadian dietary. Nothing radical about that—nor nothing helpful until the following facts are taken into consideration.

Our people are essentially wheat eaters. For more generations than most of us can count, our staple cereal food has been wheat..

I am informed that if the Canadian people ate one more slice of bread per meal, there would be no wheat surplus to worry about. It would seem the logical thing for Canadians to more fully enjoy their own good wheat, in the form of good wheaten bread and wheaten breakfast cereal before meekly agreeing to be ruined by world wheat conditions.

Kindly Dictatorship

Editor, Bulletin: In your issue of Wednesday, January 18, you have in the column "Current Comment" a reprint from the Ottawa Journal of a short article on "How to End Unemployment." The article gives, I believe, a fairely accurate picture of how unemployment is being ended in Fascist countries, but by assuming that the Socialist country the U.S.S.R. is a dictatorship of the same type as Germany and Italy implies that the same ruthless tactics are officially employed there as in Berlin.

I would like to quote from a speech by Stalin made as far back as 1935: "Our leaders should display the most solicitous attitude towards our workers 'little' and 'big' no matter in what sphere they are engaged, cultivating them assiduously, assisting them when they need support, encouraging them when they display their first successes, advancing them and so forth. . . . It is time to realize that of all the valuable capital the world possesses, the most valuable and most decisive is people."

The kindly leadership of a man like Stalin cannot be called dictatorship by any intelligent person who studies, if only to keep up to date on contemporary history—the course of events in Soviet Russia today.

The Ottawa Journal should learn that mixing your dictatorships is like mixing your drinks—not conducive to clear thinking.

If calling up young men for forced labor on farms is one of the signs of ruthless dictatorship then we appear to be heading in just that direction if the federal government continues with their present farm scheme by which young single men even right here in Edmonton are being told to work on farms for a pittance or starve?

What a waste of human wealth, and in the words of the Ottawa Journal, as applied to German methods, "What a cost in moral values!"

On This Date
By FRED WILLIAMS

On Jan. 28, 1907, Mr. J. J. Hughes (now senator) moved a resolution in the House of Commons that the British North America Act should be amended so that the three maritime provinces should not at any time have fewer representatives in the House of Commons than the number assigned to each when it entered Confederation, and the growth of the West and the decline in population of the Maritimes having resulted in reduced membership for Prince Edward Island. He was supported by most of the maritime members. Mr. (now Senator Sir) Allan Aylesworth, then minister of justice, replied with a purely legal argument to prove the island had "no right" to retain its representation.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that "Confederation was a compact" and that it should not be altered except for adequate cause and after the provinces themselves had been given the opportunity to pass judgment thereon. Which is, as I understand the contention of the present prime minister, whose intention is to refer the report of the royal commission upon dominion-provincial relations to a conference of all the provinces.

Sunshine Shafts

The young window-cleaner was very much in love, and his sighing and moodiness got on his friend's nerves.

"For goodness sake ask the girl to marry you and settle the matter," snapped Bill, his chum. "You can't keep your mind on your job while you're so unsettled."

Jim promised to propose that night and to tell Bill the result the next day. The following morning Jim looked gloomier than ever.

"She said she was very sorry, but she couldn't dream of marrying a window-cleaner," he groaned. "She is in love with another chap, but she'll regard me as a brother, and wants my brotherly help. They're going to elope tomorrow night, and I'm lending them my ladder."

INNISFAIL

INNISFAIL HAS FIRST FIRE IN OVER ONE YEAR

An overheated stove started a fire in L. Wager's shack in Innisfail which is the first fire in this town in almost two years. The building, which was valued at about $75, was completely destroyed and the contents, also valued at $75, went up in flames also.

Five minutes after the alarm was sounded the engines arrived, the delay being due to the alarmist who gave the wrong location of the fire.

LACOMBE

Despite a $400 loss in revenue when the C.N.R. decided to forfeit lands held in the town, a surplus of $1,387.87 is shown in the annual statement of the town of Lacombe, issued by secretary-treasurer L. P. Minkler and approved by town auditor D. F. Chisholm. The statement reveals that collections of municipal taxes were equal to 91.9 per cent of the amount levied. The present condition of the bond market was reflected in the notation that $9,000 in street surfacing bonds and a $10,000 bond issue to cover Lacombe's contribution to the building of the Community Hospital remain unsold, pending more favorable market conditions. However, payments of interest and principal on these bonds are being made and the town is considered to be in a sound condition financially.

Your Health – By Dr. Frank McCoy

Tomorrow morning when you roll out of bed, I want you to do this: Go to your mirror and stick out your tongue and make a good inspection of it. Is it heavily coated? Does it have a thin film on it? Or is it a normal, healthy pink color?

One reason that your doctor asks you to stick out your tongue is that it it is furred or coated, this will give him a clue that something is wrong. Often, when illness is coming, the tongue will tell the tale before other symptoms appear.

The tongue is a fairly accurate gauge of the state of the digestive tract, and upset conditions of both the stomach and intestines will often show on the tongue by the loss of the normal color. Liver trouble may produce a yellowish or brownish discoloration of the tongue. The pink color of the tongue likewise disappears when there is a fever.

Auto-intoxication, colitis, appendicitis, the acute children's disorders, and many other states are accompanied by a coating of the tongue. The only type of coat on the tongue which is of small diagnostic significance is that type which shows as a heavy coating in the morning but which gradually disappears during the day.

One of the most common questions written in the thousands of letters coming to me is: "What causes my tongue to be so coated?" A toxic condition is the most common cause of the majority of coated tongues. There are in turn many causes which may lead to this toxic or poisoned state of the body. Lowered vitality may be cited as one of the principal causes which brings about a toxic condition.

When energy is wasted upon late hours, overwork, or overeating, there will not be enough energy left to operate the necessary vital functions of the body. The elimination of poisons is retarded and this allows waste material to accumulate. The tongue will then come to reflect the inner state.

Our assimilative and eliminative organs all have their limit of endurance and after they have been overworked for years, they become weakened to such an extent that the normal elimination of poisons does not take place and thus toxemia is increased. The amount of poisoning can be measured to some extent by the quantity and quality of the coating on the tongue.

When you look at your tongue in the mirror tomorrow morning, if you find it coated, then you should start at once to get rid of the poisons in your body. Learn all you can about the following rules and how to apply them in your own case.

1. Eat plenty of cooked vegetables, and also salad vegetables.
2. Walk each day, gradually increasing the distance.
3. For one month, take a plain warm water enema each day.
4. Take physical culture exercises morning and evening.
5. Cut down on the heavy food you have been using.
6. Use only one-quarter of a pound of meat each day.
7. Do not use more than one egg a day.
8. Practice deep breathing exercises, either before an open window or out of doors.
9. Stimulate the elimination of wastes from the skin by daily bathing and daily rubbing of the skin with a bath towel.

Follow these rules for a month, really doing your best to practice good habits of health, and see what effect this has in returning the tongue to a clean, healthy condition. Probably your tongue will clear up, but if it does not do so in spite of your living as carefully as possible, then see your doctor and find out what is wrong.

College Hitch Hikers Form "Thumb" Union; Members Taboo Free Lance Road Kings

"Hi-yah, Mister! How about a ride?" With the magic insignia of the R.C.T. on his suitcase, this college student stands at the intersection of two highways and plies his "trade".

One foot in already! Invite him in, lady, or he'll stand there until he has completed his dissertation.

COLUMBIA, Jan. 28.—What in the world will these college folks think of next!

Three or four years ago it was the Veterans of Future Wars. And the repercussion that came when bareheaded, racoon-coated youngsters started that mock organization is resounding yet in the country's universities.

THE LATEST!

Now it's the Registered Collegiate Thumbers, a union for college hitch-hikers. Is the time coming when motorists will be black-listed if they give rides to scabs who can't show proper credentials? No? Well, don't be too sure. Anything can happen when collegians set out to organize something that's official—and national!

The R.C.T. smacks of the same imperturbable dignity that put the Veterans of Future Wars in the headlines. It has the advice of college faculty members, the backing of civic leaders, and the "official" promotion of student councils over the country. Its idea is even protected by copyright. Now all it needs is a co-eds' auxiliary!

MEET THEM

Some of these days, if you drive a car, you're bound to come upon a Registered Collegiate Thumber. You'll be driving down the highway, and you'll see a young fellow ahead of you violently describing arcs through the air with his thumb. Somehow or other, he'll get across to you the idea that he'd appreciate a chance to climb into your car out of the cold wind or hot sun, and listen to the latest swing music on your radio.

No, I know you don't pick up strangers; and you always step on the accelerator when you see a hitch-hiker. You probably even mutter something to yourself about "this menace to the travelling public."

CURIOSITY

But you won't be travelling too fast when you pass the young innocent, for you'll want to see where he's from. Curiosity—that's all. The sticker, though, won't be the emblem of a college. Instead, you'll see an emblem in the shape of a highway marker shield, with a diagonal band carrying the letters R.C.T. in bold relief. Perhaps you'll even notice two white thumbs on the blue background.

You're not one of those foolish persons who gives rides to strange persons. Of course you're not! But you'll want to know more about that queer sticker.

Your education will start even before young Joe College climbs in the car. He'll stand by the door and explain that the letters on the emblem stand for Registered Collegiate Thumbers, and that he'll appreciate very much a ride to wherever he's going.

He'll push some sort of official-looking membership card under your nose, and proudly inform you he's a member of the R.C.T. Then he'll turn the card over and exhibit more printing and signatures, which he'll tell you is a waiver of liability. And he'll assure you that, if you give him a ride, you are protected from a damage suit if he is injured while riding with you.

CAN TALK

At this point, if you want to get to where you are going, better tell the young man to climb in. If you don't you may be parked there for an hour getting educated on the fine points of modern hitch-hiking, collegiate style. The freshman or sophomore, or whatever he is, can talk just as well while you're spinning along the highway—and talk he will.

Perhaps he'll even tell you how this brain child of the higher halls of learning originated. But here's the story:

Registered Collegiate Thumbers made its debut last June at St. Ambrose college in Davenport, Iowa, and Stan Fiese, St. Ambrose thumber, was its godfather. Fiese used to travel the highways via thumb between Davenport and Beloit, Wis. He found the going tough; motorists rudely passed him by.

Imposters, said Fiese, were spoiling the hitch-hike game for the collegians. Posing as college men, with lettered sweaters and even freshman caps, the aliens were crowding the highways. Fiese thought something should be done about it—and so the R.C.T. was conceived.

Registered Collegiate Thumbers, the enterprising young organizer told his fellow hitch-hikers at St. Ambrose, heralded a new era in the annals of thumbing. Gone were the long waits and the chagrin of curt refusals. Gone were the days of sore feet and aching thumbs. Membership in the R.C.T., Fiese said, would identify them as worthy individuals.

NEW INSPIRATION

The hitch-hikers listened to their schoolmate-promoter, read the prospectus he prepared, and joined. For 50 cents each one got a pretty sticker and a card that said if he got killed or injured it was nobody's fault but his own. Armed with these passports, the hopeful young thumbers went out on the highways, inspired by the knowledge they were members of an exclusive, favored class of hitch-hikers.

Then Fiese wrote to student officers at other colleges asking them to "consider the far-reaching possibilities" of the St. Ambrose association. Now campuses from coast to coast have their own chapters of the Registered Collegiate Thumbers.

Promoters of the scheme here at the University of Missouri even go so far as to guarantee prospective members safe travelling through states where hitch-hiking is prohibited. "Join the R.C.T.", read signs on the campus bulletin boards, "and police will give you protection in states with anti-hitch-hiking legislation."

Boys' Work Activities

SCOUTS

Some interesting statistics pertaining to the progress of the Scout organization in Alberta throughout the past year, 1938, have been released by the provincial executive which should be of importance to all members of the movement.

The report shows that there were 717 volunteer leaders supervising and directing the Scouting activities of 7,876 boys, including Wolf Cubs, Boy Scouts, Lone Scouts, Sea Scouts and Rover Scouts in the province last year; an increase in membership of nearly 700 over that of the preceding year, 1937, and a considerable stride toward the association's ambiton to attain an active membership of 10,000 by the end of the present year. As might be expected this gain in numbers was accompanied by a steady influx of newly organized groups and well over 30 of these began their careers as independent members of the Scout movement.

BADGE RECORD

A glance at the badge records show that with about 2,000 Tenderpad and Tenderfoot badges being awarded to successful recruits the emphasis has for the most part been on the training of these younger entrants rather than the piling up of proficiency attainments which fact indicates that the older boys have given considerable time and assistance towards helping their leaders in this valuable part of Scouting activity.

The interest shown leadership training courses has always proven a fitting tribute to the diligence of endeavor with which Scout workers have sought to improve their leadership qualifications; 117 senior members attended courses conducted in the various provincial districts, while over 222 Patrol Leaders took part in and passed qualifying tests of P.L. training courses, all of which signifies the encouraging response given projects of this kind.

PUBLIC SERVICE

Appreciation of the public service given by Scouts in assisting local police, donating blood for transfusion cases, first aid and ushering facilities and other Scout activities of such nature has been acknowledged by numerous civic authorities and these records, together with the swelling interest shown the movement, stamp 1938 as an impressive year in Alberta's Scout history.

At last week's regular meeting of the recently formed St. Michael's Cub pack, Max King was installed as cubmaster by the church's Cub committee and it was decided to apply for an official charter from provincial headquarters. This charter will soon be forthcoming and will mark the initial granting of the registration document for 1939 to an Edmonton organization of the district Boy Scout body. Mr. King as well as directing the new Cub pack is an active member of the 2nd Edmonton Rover Crew so that he will approach his task of training this group of younger boys with a wealth of experience in Scouting requisites.

WELL ADVANCED

The 6th Holy Trinity Scout Troop is now well advanced in its 1939 program, and last week saw over 30 members of the troop participating in an annual sleighing party, and with a bumper hike planned for this Saturday outdoor fiestas have been the prominent feature, offering plenty of opportunity for the passing of second class and first class outdoor requirements.

Already one second class badge has been awarded Gordon Proctor while Patrol Leader Wilkinson for proficiency honors has garnered his fireman's badge. This month's honor patrol pennant was earned by the Hawks' patrol who now fly the coveted colors. The troop hockey team broke even in last week's encounters, trouncing the 27th Troop on Thursday, 5 to 2, and losing to the 20th Troop the following night by a score of 2 to 3.

As a special activity two picked teams will represent the troop in a Scouting display to be held at the Salvation Army citadel. The teams will present displays of first aid and signalling accomplishments and are led by Scouts E. Benson and H. Merryweather.

The boys of the 20th Wolf Cub Pack met last Wednesday at St. Mary's high school hall on 103 street and will meet again next Wednesday at six o'clock sharp. There is still room for a few more Catholic members from the ages of eight to eleven.

HITTING THE TRAIL

McDougall Eagles, recently organized Tuxis group, have obtained the services of leader Bryce Roher who will take over the club's mentorship and supervise their Sunday and mid-week meetings. The purpose of adding this group to an already large McDougall Tuxis body was to provide a previously surplus number of boys interested in the movement with Tuxis training and already membership in the Eagles' junior and senior divisions totals 35 boys. Harry Gradland, Albert Wells, Harry Henderson and James Thompson complete the leadership staff ho will endeavor to direct the new divisions through a successful inaugural program.

Edmonton High School Students Are Bulletin Correspondents

WESTMOUNT

By Bert Nightingale, Jr.

To the applause of an enthusiastic audience of high school students, the curtain went up Friday at the annual Lit., a gala performance being rendered by the drama classes, which presented "The Wedding." Bill McKim, the leading man, was very good indeed. His acting was excellent and his diction almost perfect.

Gwynne Napier was the feminine star, as the bride, and the supporting cast was made up of Betty Alston as the bride's aunt; Jack Hall as the bride's uncle; Joan Byar as the bridegroom's mother; Weldon Stacey, best man, and Don Saidler, friend of the bridegroom.

During this week's meeting of the W.H.S. Debate club, Mr. Shaw distributed a list of debatable topics and hints on public speaking.

Material for the latest Westmount Pioneer was in the printer's hands Monday and the finished product will be on the stands next week.

VICTORIA

By Gordon Brown

The Talent Lit held last winter was such a success that one will be held February 9 and 10, the Students' Union decided Wednesday

Ralph Hollingsworth will, as last year, be Major Bowes for the afternoon; Ken LeLacheur is advertising the affair and Bill Bartleman is in charge of the ticket sale. First tryout for the program places took place Thursday.

The third Argosy edition found its way around on Monday, sparked by "The Mouse Trap," or "Who Got Caught This Time?" Author of this column is at present unknown but maybe Don McCulloch could enlighten us.

Revenge for the setback handed Vic girls' senior hoopsters by Separate was dealt out Tuesday when the junior girls beat that school 34-11.

Two Vic ping-pong "fours" met last Saturday morning at the table tennis clubrooms and introduced that sport into the V.H.S. sports circle. Captains of the teams are Bill Mason, Ed. Hall, Dave Kushner, Bert Margolis and the leaderless "Smithies" complete the club.

Vic senior puck-chasers continued their victory trail this week with wins over Separate and Eastwood. The juniors also fought to a 4-1 victory over Separate, but the bantams fared worse, dropping a 6-0 shut-out to Eastwood.

The Dramatic club has finally announced the cast for "Pride and Prejudice" to be produced March 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Those who will take part are Bob Kidney, Bettie Knight, Marie Jordan, Sybil Podolsky, Joy Brown, Daphne Surrey, Hope McLeod, Christina MacWilliam, Jeanne Slump, Nancy Smith, Joy Yetzer, Pat Folinsbee, Ted Graham, Joyce Toby, Mildred Falkenberg, Don Warner, Fay Nicoll, Eva Heifetz, Joe Shoctor, Charles Rainsforth, Roman Sluzar, Jean Clements, Cliff Sandison, Bill Mason, Lily Lasowsky, Eileen Thompson, James Spillios, Natalka Ewasiuk.

Experienced members of the checker club are now introducing beginners in the fundamentals of the game, and a tournament will be held next month.

SOUTH SIDE HIGH

By Mary Barbara Mason

Jitterbugs and those old cronies who enjoy the waltz mixed freely Saturday night following South Side High's second "Lit" when Bob Ellis and his boys played in the Normal gym. Lending their respective talents to the program were Berniece Macbeth, Douglas Gilchrist, Bob Wiggins and Ernest Anderson in a take-off on boxing nights in the Memorial Hall; Norman Rault and Douglas Gilchrist with their banjo and harmonica; and a variety of other numbers. Following refreshments in the cafeteria over four hundred students enjoyed three hours of dancing in the modern manner.

Girls' hockey took the school headlines this week as the girls' team took the ice for the first game of the year. Challenged by the Fort Saskatchewan high school team the game which was held at the Garneau community rink was attended by a large crowd of ardent fans. From the twenty-two members who have been turning out to practices Coach "Cy" Burchell feels he has picked a winning team.

Tuesday the members of the Student's Union executive met at their regular luncheon meeting. Terminating the discussion on the question of sweaters or blazers as a suitable background for athletic, academic, and general proficiency awards the executive ratified the selection of a black sweater with crew neck, a green and maroon strip edged with gold on the sleeve, and a gold block "S" on the front. It was decided that Saturday, February 18, the school would hold another get-together in the form of a "lit" followed by dancing. Saturday, March 11 is the date set for South Side High's big formal social event of the year, the annual "At Home" to which the entire student body looks forward throughout the year.

Ping pong is one of our most popular school activities and so popular has it become at Annex I, that even after the recent purchase of a new table the club membership has had to be limited. The committee of Micky MacKinnon, Isobel Sinclair and Donald Lazerte has been kept busy each night forming schedules and answering the demands of the many enthusiastic players.

The reading of A. A. Milne's "The Boy Came Home" occupied the Dramatic Club's meeting Tuesday. The story of a boy's return from war was then cast with Gerdine Rowan, Doreen Hosford, Mary Brian, George Macdonald and Fred Simpson taking the roles. Under the direction of Michell Scott the play will be presented at the next meeting of the Dramatic Club early in February.

McDOUGALL

By Dorothy Robb

Another successful skating party can be marked up for Commercial for with good ice and fine weather and the strains of familiar music, skating got under way Friday. The schools were well represented as we could see by the grand array of school sweaters.

Now that the students have their crests for their sweaters, crests for the athletic winners are being looked into. These are to be worn on the arm and will be given to all the players on championship teams and any one else who has won points for the school.

The boys' senior basketball team was challenged by the senior Scona boys to a game last Thursday, when many basketball fans were present to watch this clean, fast, exciting game. Our girls are in fine shape and are waiting for a challenge from a school with a good team.

EASTWOOD

By Ronald Jeffels

Eastwood's public speaking club is at the present concerned with drawing up a constitution, and a committee has been chosen to act with Miss Anderson in this work. Next Tuesday the club will be given a series of talks on the art of good speaking, when speakers will include: Caroline King, Pat Brownlee, Lilian Gibson, Lorne Dunsworth, John Koshuto, Albert Ciz, Bill Dempsey, Ralph Hyde, Joan Booker and Harry Fazackerly.

Many of the boys are interested in forming a ping pong club and arranging a series of inter-school competitions.

The school's I.S.C.F. held a meeting on Friday and were given a special talk by a speaker from Nigeria, West Africa.

The senior hockey team was beaten Wednesday by Vic at Norwood but played a fine brand of hockey nevertheless. The senior basketball team will play a return series next week with Vic.

TECHNICAL

By James McBride

On Wednesday evening the Tech Science Club was lectured on Meteorology by Dr. T. G. How of the airport. Dr. How spoke mainly on weather forcasting, and he illustrated his lecture with two weather maps, one of which showed the approach of the storm that forced the Cavalier down into the sea. He explained how a meteorologist can predict high winds, rainfall and snowfall.

After the lecture the usual "open forum" was held and students were free to ask any questions concerning meteorology.

Pen Pals Wanted By Boy And Girl In Eastern Canada

PEN PAL clubs have long been a source of interest and happiness to those taking part in their far-reaching branches and a club of this sort has recentlly sprung to life in Montreal, Quebec, as two letters, one from an eastern boy and one from an eastern girl have found their way into The Edmonton Bulletin office.

Ann Schachter of 4314 Clark street, Montreal, says that she is 17 years old, is five feet three inches tall, with brown curly hair and blue eyes. Each day she works in her grandparents' wholesale as bookkeeper and wishes to correspond with any boy or girl in Alberta, and will answer their letters promptly.

From Johnny Pallin, 2314 Augier street, Montreal, who is 21 years of age there is a note which states that he would like to have a few pen pals from "the western part of the province", who would correspond about such matters as sport, politics, scenery, etc.

So if any of you ambitious correspondents from Edmonton and district would like to receive letters from these two young people who live in one of the oldest parts of Canada which has a historical background equal to any place in the world, just drop a line to either or both of the above mentioned persons and you are assured of an interesting pen pal.—THE EDITOR.

Girl, 11, Hypnotizes Subject Six Blocks Away By Broadcasting Voice Over Radio

A CHILD of 11 can broadcast hypnotic suggestions by radio and induce a hypnotic state in a listener. You doubt it?

It has been done, by Rebecca Barfield, 11, of Chattanooga, Tenn.

SUCCUMBS

At right, Joe has succumbed to the hypnotic suggestions, rigid and motionless. Miss Barfield and her instructor in hypnotism, Edward Norris, 13, have come the six blocks from the studio to Anderson's home to awaken him. Dr. R. B. Dame, psychologist, watches the performance with interest.

Little Miss Barfield, a tiny bundle of concentration, simply broadcasts over the air the same "Concentrate—relax—you are getting tired—when I count three you will be asleep" suggestions used by hypnotists on the stage. The subject, in this case Anderson, receives the suggestions just as though the operator were present in person. In this case, Anderson closed his eyes, rose from his chair, and then stiffened into a hypnotic state while attendants lowered him gently to the floor.

C.G.I.T. Notes

The Junior Authors' Club

Hello, Junior Authors!

The Editor says 'hello" if there happen to be any of you left, for it is many, many weeks since this column has appeared and it is only because several of our faithful members have written in and asked if it would be possible to continue it, that it has again found its way to you. If you Juniors wish to have the column each week, the Editor is only too happy to put the stories together and have a bumper corner each week, but you know she can't do it all, so if you want to have this space filled each week, with lots of news about your pen pals, just sit right down and send in your contributions.

Remember to write only on one side of the paper and to sign your name clearly. Don't make your stories or poems or letters too long for then there won't be room for something from each one of you.

Our first letter in a long time is from Elva McCartney, the Junior who always comes to the rescue with one of her delightful tales:

AN INDIAN FAIRY TALE

There once lived two certain tribes, the Mohawks and the Iroquois. They lived but a few miles apart and were on very peaceful terms; but there was one important law; intermarrying was not allowed.

But unfortunately at the festival held each year, Silver Star, the Iroquois chief's daughter fell in love with Black Feather of the Mohawk tribe. As they could not be seen in public they had to meet secretly by a creek, which ended in going over a cliff making a beautiful falls.

One night they planned to run away the next evening, get married and join another tribe far off. But they were overheard. They heard soft footsteps and before them was Red Lightning sneering at them. Black Feather mounted his horse and began to chase him; but as Red Lightning turned to look back over his shoulder at his pursuer he accidentally steered his horse over the cliff and was lost forever.

The two sweethearts went back to their own tribes but carried out their plans as far as they were able, for the Chief had heard of them and followed them as they were about to leave the country. The penalty for breaking the unwritten law of no marriages between tribes was death, and the lovely Iroquois maiden and stalwart Mohawk brave were sent to their fate.

For years the ghosts or spirits of these two haunted the tribes until to have some peace of mind they abolished the cruel law and allowed the members of the tribes to pick their own sweethearts.

Elva McCartney.

Dear Editor:

Although the Junior Authors' Corner hasn't been published lately I am sending in a contribution:

DAD'S QUIET EVENING

Dad was greeted with shouts of laughter as he entered the house, for we were having a party, but Dad decided to make the best of it so he sat down in a corner and commenced to read.

The noon paper was torn to shreds, by the boisterous guests, and the paper which he had just brought in had mysteriously disappeared. "Oh, those youngsters," he mumbled, as he pushed us aside from the funnies.

We had broken his glasses and he glared at us and said sternly, "You know the penalty for playing with my specks. . . ." When he found his pipe it was full of soap suds, for we had been using it to blow bubbles with.

Mom, however, came to the rescue with a fresh paper and a new pipe, and Dad isn't so mad now. So Mother once again saved us from "catching it."

Margaret Lang.

The Editor hopes that for your Dad's peace of mind that you don't have parties very often. These kind would be hard on his nice disposition to say the least.

We are always glad to welcome new members to the club and each boy or girl (no age limit) who sends in a poem or story or letter, all of which must be their own work, will be mailed a pretty Junior Authors' Club button and membership card. Elsewhere in this column is a list of the rules and regulations. Let's see if we can't make this column one of the finest in the entire paper! Get your pens and papers out, Juniors; put your thinking caps on and send the results to the Editor of the Junior Authors' Club, at The Edmonton Bulletin. Cheerio,

THE EDITOR.

The Common Law

PART VII

By GEORGE C. CRUX

Director British-Israel World Federation

In the summer of 1926 an international gathering of outstanding Jurists from all parts of the world met to consider the merits of existing systems of law.

G. C. Crux

Jurists from various parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States represented the Common Law, while others represented the Civil Law in particular.

The outstanding benefits of the Common Law were eloquently presented, but it may be said that one of the remarkable compliments regarding this system was paid by an eminent Japanese jurist who said: "The Common Law emanating from Britain, as from a fountain head is destined to become universal because of its essential righteousness."

This is not only a great compliment to the system but it is the key to the secret of the spread and success of this law. It also gives the foundation for the statement that all nations will eventually come under or accept this law of the Lord as the law of their lands.

It might be well to reflect on the history of this law among our own people. We find as stated previously that this law was known to and practised in Britain centuries before Julius Caesar was born. We find many of its principles expressed in the Triads of the Druids.

NORMANS ALSO BLESSED

The Angels and Saxons were in possession of it before they came to Britain so also were the Danes for we find the expression of the law in the "Dooms." Strangely enough the Normans (Benjaminites) were also blessed by its possession and practice.

During the period of time in which the main body of the people of Israel were in Palestine this law was not only practised then but also in the various colonies set up by them in Asia, Europe and Britain.

DIVIDED INTO TWO

After the death of Solomon the people in the homeland (Palestine) were divided into two kingdoms and the Northern Kingdom (Israel) departed from or set aside this system of law, but after their dispersion they realized their error and returned to its practice. This return to the law is graphically described by Esdras and the fact that these people did carry with them this law is testified to by Sharon Turner, Gibbons, Herodotus and others.

The course of the law was not always smooth in Britain and at times its supremacy was threatened by those who would establish themselves as supreme in authority in the land. Many disputes arose as to the supremacy of the law or the king, thus it was that Charles I lost his head and John was forced to sign Magna Carta at Runnymede.

It is interesting to note that George Washington descended from King John and nine of the barons who signed Magna Carta. This information was published in the Evening Standard, Oct. 19, 1938.

DIRECT RELATIVE

By this you realize that George Washington was not only a member of the House of David but also a direct relative of the King against whom he rebelled.

As the people emigrated from Great Britain they took with them many blessings, the greatest among them being the knowledge of Salvation and the Common Law. Thus we find the law established in all parts of the British Empire, for not only is it the law of the land in the Dominion and the homeland but by the Dominoin and the Government at home it is established in all parts of the world where they have rule. But there is somewhat of a singular significance to the fact that in each of forty-seven states of the United States the constitution of the State declares that "The Common Law of England is the law of this State."

From the above we may conclude that the Common Law has been largely responsible for the advanced position held in the world by those people who have held to it as a fundamental principle of life. This, however, is only an indication of what we may expect to realize in the not distant future when this law shall function to its full extent and be unhampered by human legislation.

THY KINGDOM COME

We pray daily, "Thy Kingdom Come." With the full revelation of the Kingdom for which we pray will come the full operation of the Law of the Lord or Common Law within that Kingdom for it is the expressed will of God and thus in harmony with God's purpose. We also pray, "Thy Will Be Done In Earth As It Is In Heaven." The Kingdom is God's Kingdom and in it shall be done His Will. Then shall our peace be as a river and our righteousness as the waves of the sea.

"Thus saith the Lord, thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel; I am the Lord thy God which teacheth thee to profit, which leadeth thee by the way that thou shouldest go.

"O that thou hadst hearkened to My commandments: then had thy peace been as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea:

"Thy seed also had been as the sand, and the offspring of thy bowels like the gravel thereof; his name should not have been cut off nor destroyed from before me."

PRESBYTERIANS SUFFER LOSSES

Canadian Presbyterians in 1938 suffered the los of two standard-bearers, Dr. A. J. Macgillivray, Guelph, and Dr. Donald MacOdrum, Brockville. It could be said of them that "they were lovely and pleasant in their lives and in their death were not divided." They had the characteristic qualities of Highlanders, physical, mental and spiritual. The former was born in Bruce County in a home that gave three sons to the ministry of the kirk, and the latter in Cape Breton in a highly respected elder's homestead. The whole continent divided them in part of their ministry, but they were to come together, each being honored with the chair of Moderator in the Assembly.

The Scottish manses and kirks have a "departed friend" in the death of Professor Archibald Kennedy, of the Hebrew Chair in Edinburgh. He began when a mere youth inspiring students for the ministry with a love for the language and literature of the Old Testament and saw more than 50 classes graduate. One who knew him well says: "It is difficult to believe that he is gone, so gracious, learned, sprightly and humorous."

MINISTER TELLS OF SOUTH MEET

Rev. E. Melville Aiken, chairman of a Calgary meeting addressed Jan. 5 by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, said here that he felt a wrong impression had been created in the minds of many people by Mr. Bennett's reference at that time to the failure of the church.

In a statement Mr. Aiken said this wrong impression was "unfair not only to the speaker but to the church as a whole," and Mr. Bennett's address was "a fine tribute to the life and work of the church; the failure had not been in the church as such, in ideals and aspirations, but in regard to the relations of men and women to it."

(In his address Mr. Bennett was quoted as saying: "I still believe in the church." He also asked: "Where has the church failed and why? I can't answer that, but it has failed.")

SPIRITUALISTS HOLD MEETING

The members of the City Temple of Spiritualism gathered at what proved to be a very good annual supper on Saturday evening.

This was followed by the yearly meeting. Reports given at this meeting showed that the affairs of the Temple were in a very healthy state, and it is gratifying to know that as a congregation, the local Spiritualists have no financial obligations, and that membership numbers are consistent and the interest of non-spiritualists shows a decided increase.

Other centres of Spiritualism throughout Canada may be more privileged in obtaining the services of visiting mediums, which Edmonton has had to forego through being off the main line, but this apparent handicap has been the means by which local workers have attained a standard comparable with that of far larger centres.

SUNDAY SPORTS SAID FAVORED

TORONTO, Jan. 28. — Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn is paving the way for professional Sunday sports, Rev. George W. Webber, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, said yesterday. He was commenting on the Premier's action in supporting the attitude taken by Attorney-General Gordon Conant, who said that there should be modification of Sunday "blue laws."

"There is nothing in the Lord's Day Act of 1906 to forbid personal recreation," Mr. Webber said. "Any ban on personal recreation to which objection is taken, is wholly due to the act of 1845. The 1906 Federal act does not forbid Sunday recreation; it forbids the business of sport on Sundays. There is nothing in the act that I know of to stop people from playing baseball or like games, so long as they are not commercial in any way."

In supporting the Attorney-General, Mr. Hepburn said: "Certain games and shows are permitted in other provinces and states on Sundays and I cannot see that Ontario's morals are very much superior."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Love" is the subject of the lesson-sermon at all Christian Science churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Psalms 36:7. One of the scriptural citations is "And this commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also" (John, 4:21). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Adhere to the Divine Principle of Christian Science and follow the behests of God, abiding steadfastly in wisdom, truth and love." (p. 495).

Tunisia

By DR. H. L. STEWART

Professor of Philosophy, Dalhousie University, and Editor of Dalhousie Review

What sort of place is that small area on the northern coast of Africa whose problems just now threaten to set all Europe aflame?

People speak of it as a French "possession," and in a sense it is, just that. But it has its own Moslem ruler, known as "the Bey of Tunis," who acknowledges no French control, but only French advice. His advisers, however, like the advisers of a king under limited monarchy, not only expect but require that their recommendations shall be followed. Many an official at the court of the Bey of Tunis is a Turk or a Syrian, and the professors at the country's Mohammedan institution of learning are in frequent contact with Mecca. It is the Oriental character of the place that perhaps first and most strongly impresses a British or an American visitor — such, for example, as Miss Elizabeth Monroe, who has lately written about it in her book, "The Mediterranean in Politics":

"The Eastern tastes of the less educated classes strike your ear and eye as you walk through the bazaars. Wireless sets are relaying Cairo: photographs of King Farouk are on sale, and Egyptian newspapers — which Tunisia imports at the rate of several tons a month—are being read aloud to the smokers in the cafes."

But the French control, however remote and unobtrusive, none the less decides everything. In the end, all Tunisian policy is prescribed to the Bey by advisers, who themselves are directed from Paris.

More than half a century ago France interfered in Tunisia, after the same manner in which Great Britain interferred in Egypt. Those Moslem states had their finances in a condition of chronic chaos, and relief of the financial sort—to states as to individuals—establishes a "hold" which may be variously used afterwards.

The British have now left Egypt to be sovereign in her own house, but the French never contemplated and do not now contemplate, any such dealing with Tunisia. It is not surprising to learn that news from Cairo creates in Tunis a certain temper of unrest.

Here is a small country, in which news travels fast, much faster for example than in Algeria or Morocco. The French control has aimed at turning its natives into a sort of Frenchman, and gradually—stimulated in part by what he hears of the different regime in Egypt under British "advisers," the Tunisian has become quite discontented. For instance he hates to see the national services manned by three Frenchmen to every Tunisian, and French colonists settled "on grounds of war service" where Tunisians had prior claim.

So the native Moslem problem in this French protectorate was becoming a little troublesome even before Italy began to intensify and to exploit it. Of course, the natives would have been disciplined pretty easily into submission if their complaint had been by itself. But now comes this Fascist outcry as well.

Long before French ambition seized on Tunisia and made it a protectorate in 1881, Italian settlers had been going there. It is just 80 miles sail from Sicily, and the most inviting spot for Italian colonization.

Besides feeling so much at home, hardly even noticing a climatic difference, they felt a touch of pride in settling in the country which held the ruins of ancient Carthage. Italian poets, says Miss Monroe, began to compare King Victor Emmanuel to Scipio, and Vergil's Georgics come to mind as one watched the Tunisian agriculture. But—alas for schemes of Italian colonization in Africa, when France had seized Tunisia and, still more 15 years later, when an Italian army was overwhelmed by Ethiopians at Adowa!

The French indeed still tolerated Italian settlement after they had taken the country over as a protectorate. But Italians who continued to come were soon taught to acquiesce in a definitely French regime. Quite easily they might before very long far outnumber the French, and—as a precaution in view of this—within 14 years after Adowa the first Franco-Italian agreement was denounced at Paris. Italian settlers in Tunisia must in future, if they wanted equal treatment with the French take out naturalization papers. Their schools were gently obstructed; if they were employed in the civil service, their pay was below that of Frenchmen—and so forth.

All this irritated Italian pride. But, although there had been much grumbling over Tunisia in the early years of Mussolini's rule, it came to a sudden stop in 1935. Like the stop in German complaints against Poland over the Corridor. And for a very similar reason!

Each was a case of patching up temporarily a dispute, because it was essential for other purposes that the disputants should be at peace. Germany wanted to keep Poland, as "buffer state," at least neutral, so as to render the Franco-Soviet pact ineffective. For this reason complaint about the Corridor was hushed for a period of ten years. And Mussolini wanted France to obstruct league sanctions in the Abyssinian affair. So he promised to make no trouble about the law providing for "ultimate" absorption of Italians under the protectorate of Tunisia in French citizenship.

The Duce was all the more willing to agree to this (and obtain the invaluable help which Laval rendered), because the date fixed for ultimate extinction of Italian nationality in Tunisia was so remote: 1945 for making all the schools French, 1965 for naturalization of alien citizens. So much might happen in the meantime!

A great deal has been happening. There is more ahead. Laval did his part, irrevocably, in the bargain. So all that remained to hamper Mussolini was a promise.

He is keeping it, after the manner one ought to have expected.

Dual - Purpose Shorthorn Is Best For West

SASKATOON, Jan. 28—Suggestion that the milk-strain shorthorn type of cattle would be most suitable to the conditions of Western Canada was made at the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan live stock board by its president, Arthur Richardson of Semans Friday. Mr. Richardson was re-elected president.

Mr. Richardson, discussing the purebred sire area question, explained that indiscriminate breeding of good sires to poor breeding stock, or cross breeding, still produced nondescript cattle.

The qualities of the dual-purpose shorthorn as he knew them in England were particularly suited to Western Canada, Mr. Richardson felt. The milk-strain shorthorn produces generous quantities of milk and the same time has good beef characteristics.

Have An Apple!

By Nellie McClung

(Copyright Reserved)

SOME DAY, some poetic soul will write the whole story of apples: their history, their development, their uses, their beauty, the part they have played in the development of the human family, and the place they occupy in song and story. Apples are the children of the sunlight, like the daisies that star the meadows, and should be furnished free of charge to all dusty pilgrims on life's highways. For they are more than food—they are refreshment, encouragement, beauty and comfort.

HAUNTED DREAMS

This may seem extravagant to the people who have always had all the apples they want, who have never had their dreams haunted by the delirious sweetness of a remembered apple.

The daily diet of the prairie when I was a child did not include apples. Transportation difficulties made it impossible to bring anything as perishable as apples. But when the C.P.R. was built in 1885, apples were shipped into Brandon from Ontario and Nova Scotia, and the whole pattern of life brightened.

There came a day in mellow October each year, before the hard frost set in, when the wagon that carried wheat to the elevators brought back barrels of apples, and life began at Northfield school. Every dinner pail then had apples—while they lasted. I wish I could get an apple now that had the flavor of the Ontario Northern Spy, or the Nova Scotia Gravenstein, and I write this with complete understanding of the longing in the heart of the men who struck that magic chord on the organ, and sought vainly for it afterward.

It may have been the long years of privation, the ravenous appetite of a child, unspoiled by too many carbohydrates. I know that the apples of that day had a tang, a crispness, a juiciness, an indefinable sweetness that I have not tasted since.

What a great day it was in the life of the prairie when a man named Stevenson began the experiment of growing some of the hardier varieties at old Nelson, near Morden, Manitoba. The pessimists said he was wasting his time, but Mr. Stevenson went on. He had a shelter belt of trees around three sides of his orchard, leaving only the south side open, and in time he won. I remember the glad news that he had sold 80 barrels of apples.

OBLIGING FRUIT

Apples are the most obliging fruit in the world. They will grow almost anywhere—every state in the United States and every province in Canada, though not in commercial quantities, in the three prairie provinces.

The Pilgrim Fathers brought apples to America from Europe, and it was in 1801 that Johnny Appleseed began his work project, to put apple trees along every trail in the country. Now I have always wondered how Mr. Jonathan Chapman managed to make his seeds grow. I have scattered seeds in wayside places—seeds of hardy flowers, delphiniums, marigolds, sweet peas, raking them in lightly and hoping that next year I would see the bright bloom gladdening the glade, but never a bloom have I seen. I blamed the fowls of the air. But I read now that Johnny Appleseed planted the seeds carefully, cultivating the ground before he put in the seed, and making a fence around them to protect them, and for 50 years came back to cultivate his nurseries. So that is how he started the apple industry, and put all his countrymen in his debt.

EXACTING TOIL

It was by patient and exacting toil. I always pictured Johnny Appleseed whisking along in a buckboard, throwing appleseeds out with both hands.

A recent writer has said that apples are the greatest health builders we have. They contain all the vitamins that other fruit lacks—they build up the body in strength and beauty. If every person would eat an apple a day, peace and happiness would surely come back to this troubled world, for everyone would feel well, be happy, spend money and love their neighbors.

I did not know all this about apples—I only knew that there is a magical touch in a good big plate of apples, rubbed until they shine. No home should be without them.

Now take tonight. The winter has swept over Vancouver Island. Storm signals are flying on the Belmont Building—rain lashes the windows. There is a good moon, but it is shut out by clouds. No one will be abroad tonight. Families have to depend upon themselves on a night like this. The roads are wet and treacherous. But inside there is a cracking wood fire in the kitchen stove, and in the fireplace, too. But a kitchen has the advantage over any other room when it comes to a matter of real comfort on a stormy night. The homey things seem to give security.

All day long we have heard about problems. Every newspaper is full of problems. President Roosevelt spoke, warning America that she must be united in spirit for the forces of evil are gaining ground.

I have been reading "Insanity Fair," by Dougas Reed. It is a disquieting book on the same theme. He says our turn is coming. The radio has just carried a frank discussion of the whole unemployment question. There are seven thousand unemployed single men in Canada. A writer in the local paper is pretty sure the Japanese will get us sooner or later. But there is not much we can do about it tonight, so let us draw up to the kitchen table and eat apples—lovely, crisp MacIntosh Reds!

Keats may have been thinking of apples when he wrote:

> "In spite of all
> Some shape of beauty moves away > the pall
> From our dark spirits."

NO TIME TO MARRY

By ELINORE C. STONE

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JANET DWIGHT, heroine. She was engaged to handsome young architect

LANCE BARSTOW, hero. Lance had great dreams for the future. So did

CYNTHIA CANTRELL, orphaned granddaughter of great-aunt Mary Cantrell. Still another dreamer was BARNEY McKNIGHT, newspaperman. But Barney was more than a dreamer.

Yesterday: At a party, Janet finds Lance alone on the veranda with another girl—Cynthia. She flees in terror, trips over a man coming out of the house.

CHAPTER XV

SOMEONE caught Janet and supported her somewhat awkwardly until she regained her balance.

Then Barney McKnight exclaimed, "Janet! . . . Why, Janet, you're shaking like a leaf. What—?"

"Barney," Janet begged, "take me home! . . . Please take me home, Barney!"

"Wait a minute! There seems to be more here than meets the eye."

Barney slipped her hand through his arm, and moved as if to stroll along the quiet veranda. But Janet held back.

"No, Barney," she said in a stifled voice. "Not that way! I can't go back there."

"All right—this way then."

He reversed their direction.

"Now, tell Uncle Barney all about it."

"No, Barney. I—can't. . . . Just take me home, please."

"Say, listen, honey," Barney said. "I took a lady home from a party once because she seemed to think she had to go in a hurry and nearly got my fool block knocked off by the boy friend when I got back. This knight-errant business can be pushed too far. I'm not rescuing any more damsels in distress without good and sufficient reasons. Where's the fair-haired boy?"

"He's—I don't know."

Barney turned and stared down the veranda behind them for a long moment, and Janet felt his arm stiffen under her hand. Then he said, his voice roughening suddenly, "I get it. . . . You've finally got the layout, too. I think I knew all along, for I never did manage to kid myself about Cynthia in any big way. . . . O-kay, Jan. Wait for me at the side drive. I'll get your wrap and sign off with Leslie."

After they got into the car, Barney said, "How about driving around for awhile?"

"I don't care," Janet said numbly. "Talk to me, Barney. . . . Just talk to me about anything."

"All right. You asked for it," Barney said as he turned the car out upon the broad moonlit highway along the river. "The man doesn't live who needs any more excuse than that to talk about himself. How about this for a start—I've got a swell new job."

"A new job?" Janet echoed, surprised for the moment out of herself. "But I thought you liked working for the News."

"I should have said a special assignment. . . . You remember I told you the other day that I had the lowdown on the Skidmore killing? That is, I know what's back of it, but I can't prove it yet. That's my assignment. Young Billings is going to handle football and college sports, and I'm going to keep the prize-ring angle and some others which will bring me in touch with a lot of the sort of people I need to know to get my other story. I'm to have three months to work on it. If I break it, it may shake up the whole city government, and incidentally mean a whole new field for me. . . . If I don't—well I may not eat for awhile."

"But, Barney, it sounds dangerous."

"Not necessarily. No one but the boss and I will suspect what I'm up to till it's all in the bag. No one expects a sports reporter to have eyes for anything but fouls and knockouts."

So Barney talked quietly on, and Janet listened, steadied and quieted by the listening. To Janet's surprise, she learned that he had been writing on current events for some time, and had even had several articles published in current magazines.

It was almost five when they finally drove home. Lance was sitting in the living room, white and rigid, while Aunt Mary knitted quietly in her low chair by the fireplace.

"Well, I must say, McKnight," Lance began, his voice tight with anger, "you and Janet have put me in a pretty spot. Can't you imagine how I felt, after huntng all over the hotel for you, Janet, to be with another man? And your aunt told that you'd gone out hours ago, has been frantic with worry."

"I have not," contradicted Aunt Mary flatly, "been at all frantic—especially after I learned that Janet was with Barney."

Janet, who knew this was a high-handed prevarication, almost smiled. Lance flushed with annoyance and turned back to Janet.

"I thought," he began icily, "that we agreed it was best just now to be seen together as much as possible. What will people think—"

"Now, that is an important consideration," Barney interrupted smoothly. "It doesn't matter, I suppose, what you do in private? Well, that ought to go both ways, oughtn't it,"

"Please, Barney!" Janet broke in before Lance could reply. Then she turned to Lance. . . . It would have been more decent, of course, to have had this out with Lance alone; but since he had raised the issue, it might as well be settled here and now.

"Lance," she asked quietly, "What difference can it possibly make what other people think about us, when all this time neither of us has seemed to have any idea what the other was thinking? I understand—now—a lot of things that have seemed strange to me these last few days. . . . You see, I was on the veranda, too, tonight; and—oh, there isn't any use talking, is there? Won't you just—go away, Lance?"

After a moment Lance said in a smothered voice, "You'll be sorry tomorrow, Janet. At least we might do this thing with some dignity."

Janet even smiled a little at that—her eyes very bright and dark and steady in her white face.

"Dignity?" she echoed. "What a funny word that can be! And somehow, just now, I'd rather be honest than dignified. . . . I wish you'd go, Lance. And please don't come back."

Then Lance did go, without a word. When Barney lunged about as if to follow him, Aunt Mary quickly turned the key in the lock and planted her small person against the hall door.

"Oh, no, young man" she said. "I'm here to see that he has at least five minutes' start. I'm not going to have you 'knocking his block off,' as I suppose you would term it, on my doorstep. This family is getting enough publicity these days without that."

"And suppose I just lift you out of the way?" Barney suggested, glowering down at her as if he were seriously considering it.

"I," said Aunt Mary, "should scream for the police as loudly and long as I could. And if you don't think I have good stout lungs, just start something."

Barney continued to glower for a moment, and then dissolved into laughter.

"Now that's being a pal!" he said. "If you knew how long I've been wanting to push that lizard's face in, you'd give me a break."

When Barney, too, finally went, Janet said, her fingertips white from gripping the arm of her chair, "Of course it's better to find out now, all at once, instead of—afterwards, . . . Aunt Mary, I'm almost glad I lost my money."

"Now that it's happened," Aunt Mary said bluntly, "I'm free to say that I think it's worth it at any price."

Late next day Cynthia came unceremoniously into Janet's room.

"Jan," she began, sitting down and nervously stripping off her gloves, "there's something I've got to talk to you about."

Telford Wages War On Phone Concern's Charge

VANCOUVER, Jan. 28—Mayor Lyle Telford Friday said he has instructed city electrician Thomas Martin and license inspector H. A. Urquhart to investigate and report on "rackets" which he claims exist in the telephone industry in Vancouver.

He said charges for "monophones", a type of telephone, in Vancouver are too high.

"There is an unpardonable racket in monophones," Mayor Telford said. "These people are making enough money as it is. They just take us to be simple-minded."

Bombay Sets Free 40,000 From Bonds To Landed Class

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 28.—The Bombay presidency, a province of India, Friday freed 40,000 natives from their ancient bondage to landowners. Their subjection was part of a system whereby young men borrowed money to get married and repaid landowners at rates so small they could not hope to clear their debts in a lifetime.

Raising A Family

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I was in bed getting over a cold. I heard a child's voice downstairs. It was not one I recognized.

In a few minutes my daughter called up. "Betty Lou is here, mother. Can she come up?"

O. R. Barton

Almost simultaneously there appeared at my door a small figure in a blue dress. "You'd better not come in, dear," I said. "I'll just say 'How do you do' from here." I knew her now, although I had not seen her for a year or two. She was visiting in our town.

"I'm not afraid of being sick," she said. "I am very healthy."

Anyway, I was better and the cold was on the wane. She made herself right at home and admired a blue bed-jacket I had on.

"Betty Lou is staying for supper," said Virginia. And I said, "That's fine. I am getting up right away."

Betty Lou is just eight. I spoke to her about school and mentioned my small grandson who is seven. When she heard that he was in the third grade, she said at once, "He shouldn't be. I'll tell you why. He needs to learn every little thing and some day he will be all mixed up if he doesn't get it now." I thoroughly agreed. But I was becoming more and more interested in this young lady with such an old head.

She acted as though she had known us well for years. She was a combination of good manners and natural spontaneity. The house, strange as it must have seemed, did not daunt her. She admired this and that, and I admired her.

At dinner she picked up a little silver salt dish, blue lined, and said, "What a cute little tub! And the little salt spoons are the sweetest things," she added.

"They come from a shop in Paris," I said. "But you haven't come to that yet in your geography. I think we'll just call them fairy spoons."

She liked that better. "You do have the cutest things," she said again, handling a small butter-spread.

She chose some left-over custard for dessert as we had a rather rich pudding. "Mother would say it was best." And then almost before I realized what she was doing, she was going around and gathering up our dishes and helping Tillie.

"HI-YA, TOOTS"

"Oh, you need not do that," I urged. "Can't we talk a little while?"

"I like to work," she insisted, humming a tune. And help she did. She insisted on drying dishes and I let her alone. Once she came to the door of the living room, dish towel in hand, and said to the air in general, "Hi-ya, toots." Then she disappeared. She has a brother fifteen. She was merely sending a friendly greeting.

After that we did talk until she had to leave. She spoke of school again. "All the whisperers and robbers have to sit up front," she said.

Entertained? Well, certainly. And I decided that for originality and sweetness, this little girl was tops indeed. I feel that I must salute her. "Hi-ya, toots."

What To Do

I belong to a group of young married couples who meet every month at one of the homes for dinner. It will soon be my turn to entertain and I would like to introduce a brand-new slant to the evening. We usually play bridge or some other game, but I would like to add a novel touch to the dinner. Thank you. MRS. M. H. K.

Answer—If you want to promote a general good time among your guests and give a dinner party in that "no-trouble-at-all manner," try this stunt when it is your turn to entertain. Before the dinner is served, let the guests draw slips of paper from a hat. The slips should be numbered consecutively from 1 up, and on each write some chore such as (1) get the ice water and fill the glasses; (2) remove dishes after the first course; (3) stack dishes in the kitchen; (4) when the host carves, act as maid and serve the main course to each guest; (5) serve the dessert, and so on and so on. If there is any time left for which the guests do not furnish their own steam, then you can play bridge, hearts or any other game you want.

French Actors Have Entry In Festival

A TALE from Corsica, of love and passion for revenge in a country where temper runs hot and feeling is made synonymous with reason forms the plot of Les Trois Masques, the entry of Le Cercle Moliere in the Provincial Drama Festival planned for Friday and Saturday evenings, February 24 and 25.

WINNERS IN 1936

Winners of the Edmonton and district sub-regional drama festival and of the provincial festival in 1936, the French players have a most enviable record of dramatic achievement, and are planning to make this entry a suitable encore to their many past successes.

The play, written by Charles Mere, is a happy vehicle for the French temperment, and the artists appearing in it are well known to both English and French audiences.

Les Trois Masques is the story of the sacrifice of the life of the hero by the three brothers of the heroine, whose marriage to Paolo, hero of the piece, was forbidden by his father, Prati della Corba. In the gaiety and revelry of the Mardi Gras, the crime is perpetrated and the lovely Viola left alone and despairing.

CHARACTERS IN PLAY

Laurier Picard is director of the play and brings to his task his wealth of acting knowledge gained from many years participation in local dramatics. Gabrielle Hervieux, no newcomer to Edmonton dramatics, plays the part of Viola. As a member of the cast which won the povincial festival in 1936 she has already shown her great ability and scope as an actress.

Mme. A. Hervieux is Mancecca, Fanning Boileau is Prati, Paulo Hervieux is Paolo, and Andre Dechene as a drunken sailor make up the talented and experienced cast.

M. Alphonse Hervieux, actor and director of note, appears also in the play. Truly an all-star cast in a finished and artistic venture!

War Material Export Is Protested

VICTORIA, Jan. 28. — A resolution protesting the export of war materials to aggressor nations was adopted today at the closing session of the Victoria Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary society of the United Church of Canada.

The resolution, addressed to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said Canada has been shipping scrap and metal to Japan, Italy and Germany for use in campaigns in China, Ethiopia and Spain. It warned that war materials may be "accumulated and used at any time against Canada and other freedom-loving countries for the destruction of freedom-loving peoples."

The government was asked to seek co-operation of other countries in placing an embargo against aggressor nations.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

. . . "I'll TELEPHONE You!

. . . and doesn't the telephone come in handy when a situation arises that necessitates verbal communication—picking up the receiver, dialing the number in mind and passing on YOUR message.

All within a very few moments you have completed your piece of business or pleasure. "YES, I'LL TELEPHONE you, by all means."

Good Habits Govern Health After Thirty

By ALICIA HART

The better your health habits, the better your chances of remaining attractive after thirty and a bit younger looking than you are. Women who eat sensibly, take enough exercise, get adequate sleep and plenty of fresh air have firmer, fresher skins, shinier hair, more supple, slender figures and better dispositions than those who ignore completely the importance of health routines.

In the first place, no woman past thirty ought to consider it a waste of time to have occasionally a complete, thorough physical examination. If, in spite of proper attention to simple rules for good health, you are chronically tired, much too thin, have headaches all too often or a persistent pain or ache in any one part of your body, you certainly ought to see your family doctor. Don't wait until next year or even next month. See him at once.

When you were twenty, you probably could dance all night and go to work fresh and clear-eyed the next morning. Perhaps you can do that now occasionally. But the chances are that you can't make a practice of cutting down considerably on sleep night after night and not have the bad results show in your face.

By this time, you know well how much sleep you actually require. If you are sensible, you'll get that amount just about every night. And when you don't, you'll try to catch up by going to bed earlier the following night.

GO EASY ON FOOD

You can't eat everything in sight three times a day and, in addition, nibble between meals and not endanger the trim lines of your figure. Or even your health, for that matter. Doctors agree that it's a bad idea for anyone past thirty to be greatly overweight.

Furthermore, no matter how much you diet to keep slender, or what fine care you give your skin, your body and complexion will not be truly youthful-looking unless you get a reasonable amount of exercise. Exercise—and nothing else—keeps joints from becoming stiff, muscles flabby and the step light and airy instead of heavy and clumsy. Stimulation of circulation is the best skin treatment in the world, and going in for physical exercise is the best way to stimulate it.

Minute Make-Ups

After a warm bath at the end of a strenuous day, your feet may still feel puffy and tired. So give them a quick massage, of course. And then pat them briskly with an astringent or your usual skin tonic. For that's just as deliciously refreshing to your feet as to your face.

QUICK FOOD COLORING

Delicately tinted icings and desserts are easy to produce with a liquid food coloring packaged in a new way. You can buy a set of four primary colors, red, green, blue and yellow, together with instructions for combining to produce other colors you may need. And you don't need to worry about over-coloring. Each bottle is topped with a colored top that [illegible]ches the contents and that al[illegible]

Dorothy Dix Says:

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 18. Have been going with a boy 20 years old for nearly two years, and while we have allowed our love to overrule our better judgment we do not regret it. We plan to be married as soon as he is able to support me. However, during my close association with him I have discovered that he is very jealous and hard-headed. He objects if I even smile in speaking to another boy. I cannot be polite to one without his taking offense and making some sarcastic remark about the way I am falling all over the boy's neck. Can you suggest a remedy? DISGUSTED.

Answer:

This boy has shown you exactly the sort of a husband he would make and how mean and selfish and tyrannical he would be to you, and so if you marry him your fate will be on your own head and you will deserve what you get.

Most men during their courtship are chivalrous, tender and flattering and spend their time telling their sweethearts how beautiful and wonderful and perfect they are. And, as it is human for us to find it easy to believe what we want to believe, the credulous girls marry them thinking they are getting Fairy Princes for husbands.

Those women have the excuse of having been deceived by the men they married, but you have no such alibi. The man you say you intend to marry has lit all of the red lights of warning before your eyes. You will certainly qualify as a mental defective if you let yourself in for what you know must be a life of misery.

Don't think marriage cures jealousy. It only adds fuel to the flames, because the sense of possession a man has of his wife makes him feel that he has a right to monopolize even her very thoughts.

BASKET-BALL WAS NOT ORIGINALLY SO-CALLED
1-21

The famous American game of basketball, invented by Dr. Naismith, was originally called indoor rugby. A player on an early team suggested that it be called basketball, and the name was soon adopted. Although many changes have been made in the rules of the game, the principles have never changed.

Long-Stemmed American Beauties

By John Robert Powers

The currently most popular of models is Miss Georgia Carroll. This beauty, famed for her peaches and cream complexion, was born in Blooming Grove, Texas, a very small town just outside of Dallas. The date was November 18, 1919.

Her family moved to Dallas when she was a small girl and she attended the public schools there until she graduated from high school.

She was chosen queen of the Texas Centennial Exposition and there she had the good fortune to meet McClelland Barclay, the famous illustrator. Mr. Barclay encouraged her to come to New York to see me, telling her that she was certain to be successful in the modelling field. Although she was on a commercial program over a Dallas radio station she secured a leave of absence and came to New York, intending to stay but a month and then return to college in Texas. However at the insistence of Mr. Barclay she came to see me one Saturday morning.

Miss Carroll was a natural and I sent her out immediately to see some of the leading photographers and artists. Sh was working on Monday and has been heavily in demand ever since.

Unlike any other model that has started with me I was able to increase her pay from five dollars per hour to ten dollars per hour within three weeks after she started working for me. A look at her work chart will vindicate my judgment because she is busy working from early morning until late afternoon. She has been working now for a little over eight months and is ever increasingly popular. I believe that I can safely predict that she will be chosen this year by the Art Directors as either the Most Beautiful Model or the Most Popular Model.

Last summer she was fortunate enough to be chosen by a large steamship line to go on a cruise to the West Indies and South America. Her only job was to wear the advance styles supplied by the most expensive New York stores and for this delightful trip she was paid her regular modelling fees, plus of course all her expenses. Her only regret was that she didn't get to keep the clothes and she couldn't afford to buy them.

Georgia has two ambitions but one supercedes the other. The first is to further her singing. She has a lovely contralto voice. The second is to get married happily and for that she is ready to give up everything else.

Georgia has no set style for wearing her hair. This is perhaps due to the fact that her work demands that she change her hair style four or five times every day. She thinks that plain black dresses trimmed with fuschia suit her particular type of hair and complexion best.

Georgia keeps her lovely complexion with a minimum use of cosmetics. She uses only a mild cleansing cream at night, lightly applied rouge to her cheek bones, and uses lipstick sparingly. She does not exercise beyond walking and does not think it is either necessary to diet or exercise if a person will take a walk after meals and insure proper digestion of the food they have eaten. Above all she is a firm believer in the old adage of "early to bed, early to rise."

You can be as choosy as you like about the canary you finally select to be your pet. Canary experts tell us that years of careful breeding produce birds of exceptional voice range and tonal quality. You may [illegible] voice register. Plumage, too, has careful attention. Don't be astounded if the pet shop proprietor shows you a red canary or a blue one. It's still a canary, and may trill as sweetly as the more familiar yellow, in spite of its exotic dress.

Don't Forget That Jealousy Is A Curable Thing

My husband says to me, "For goodness sake quit watching and comparing and knocking Betsy. She doesn't knock you. She's having too good a time."

THERE are things you can do about a bad skin. You can keep it clean, soften it with creams, help it with powder. But the real cure for a bad skin lies in the digestive tract, and unless you cure the trouble there you'll never be praised for your complexion.

Jealousy is a spiritual condition that in some ways corresponds to that stagnation of the body that is represented by a bad complexion. No woman can be attractive with a blotched face, and no woman can be attractive when she is gnawed and tortured by the wretched poisons of jealousy. Just as the one spoils her appearance and ruffles her disposition, so the other frets her body and soul, and destroys even the simplest and most natural of her relationships with everyone about her.

A jealous woman is an abstracted and nervous mother, a bad manager, a slack housekeeper, a slovenly dresser. Her conversation is filled with uneasy apprehensions and suspicions, and her sleep at night haunted with insufferable thoughts.

Here is a typical letter from a woman whose whole life, on her own confession, has been ruined by sheer jealousy. She speaks of it as though it were a condition she had no power to change.

"No matter what I have, or what I am doing," writes this unhappy lady, "I am tortured with the thought of what more fortunate women have and are doing. And the funny part of it is that I don't pick prominent persons unknown to me socially to envy, but will spend hours thinking of those I know, those in my own immediate circle, who have received some invitation, or have been reported to have had some interesting experience.

"My special misery is a woman I will call Betsy. She is pretty, but it isn't that. And her husband is more successful than mine, but it isn't that. But she has the quality of making everything she does seem the right and enviable thing to do; of making people admire her and quote her; of leading the way that we others try very unsuccessfully to follow.

ADMITS SHE'S UNREASONABLE

"It seems to me that there's no day of my life that doesn't bring me some testimony to Betsy's charm and success. It's gotten so that I can't speak of her naturally, and my husband teases me about it, and that makes it worse. He says to me 'For goodness sake quit [illegible] comparing and knocking Betsy! She doesn't knock you. She's having too good a time. Let her alone!'

"All I said on this occasion was that when I walked over to Betsy's on Sunday with my boys she was alone. 'I'm surprised that the popular Betsy didn't have a string of people there,' was all I said. But we had some words about it and my husband wound up by telling me that my jealousy would wreck my life and his own. He does some business with Betsy's husband, or rather he is a clerk in the big business in which Betsy's husband is an important figure, and he is afraid of any personalities getting in the way of his business advancement.

"I am willing to admit that I am unreasonable. But what can I do? When I get our car overhauled Betsy gets a new car; her last was a gift from a man admirer. When we go to the camp in the mountains for six weeks Betsy takes a flying trip to Europe as someone's guest. When I am asked to go on the World's Fair Committee of our club Betsy says to me kindly, 'Oh, yes, I asked them to put your name on that, Jean.' We can't move away. I can't seem to change. I'm sickened with the stupidness of thinking all the time of Betsy, but how can I stop? Did you ever hear of a case like this, and what was done about it?"

And her pen-name for this letter is 'Disconsolate Jean.'

Disconsolate means "unconsoled," but I hope that the few suggestions I can make will help [illegible] Jean into a happier frame of mind. For her trouble is a very common one, and easily curable if she goes about it with courage and good sense.

ADVISED TO FORGET BETSY

It has gained such a hold on her because she is really living another woman's life instead of her own. She is living Betsy's life. The sweets, the richness of her own wifehood and motherhood is destroyed because she is so afraid that Betsy's sweets are a little more honeyed, Betsy's bank account a little larger. The probability is that Betsy is a woman of a much more hardened and less sensitive type. Betsy probably doesn't know it when she is rebuffed, or doesn't put the same value on any human relationship that Jean does. Betsy accepts a car from a male admirer for favors unrecorded, goes to Europe with other friends, leaving her small girls behind; reaches out gaily and carelessly for whatever she wants and takes it, and manages to make everyone think that she is quite right in what she does. Her husband is recognizable type; admiring, unimaginative, indifferent. He doesn't question what she does, or criticize the methods that may be sometimes a little coarse or unfeel[illegible]

Jean's course is to forget Betsy, to build her own life into beauty, to make her own person and ways and gifts enviable and on somewhat sounder lines. A woman who has a good husband, sons, a town home and a mountain camp, a car, a club, health, enough money, is richer than ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent of the world's women. She is included in that fortunate one-[illegible] given the riches of life, in books, movies, friends, garden, nursery, loved companionship, free from want and fear. It is her own fault if she fails to develop all this into something very near perfection.

So Jean, my advice to you is [illegible] few changes at [illegible] pantry, or get the side[illegible] for spring meals. During this time begin to convince your husband [illegible] luckiest [illegible] those three little boys through help with homework [illegible] and [illegible] have they are the mo[illegible] boys. And make it tr[illegible]

WORK IS THE ANSWER

Keep some inspiring plan going. Discuss at dinner what you are going to do at the camp, find out what game your husband's boss likes to play, what is his favorite food, and ask him to dinner.

In a [illegible] quoted [illegible] an assistant to a photographer. Why not [illegible] raphy? Take [illegible] and someday sell some of them to advertising agencies for good round sums. Take [illegible] of your friends' children for Christmas cards. One woman who writes me [illegible] several thousand of these mounted on red-lined cards last year.

Work is the answer, Jean. Keep busy. You won't be the first woman to play [illegible] your friend Betsy if you bring intelligence and courage to the race.

REDUCTION OF AUTO LICENSE FEES MOOTED

Reduction by 50 per cent of automobile license fees, is requested in a resolution to be debated at the third annual Alberta Social Credit League convention, now in progress at the Masonic Temple. To offset the loss of revenue occasioned by this reduction, sponsors of the resolution advocate increasing the gasoline tax.

Administration of relief by government officials instead of R.C.M.P. is the subject of another resolution. Another resolution asks that government appointments be given only to Social Crediters.

Still another resolution asks that the election act be amended so that no names will be added later than seven days before polling.

Institution of the seven per cent production tax is sought in another resolution.

Implementing of a state medicine plan in the province is urged in another resolution.

Still another resolution sought a special legislative session during the visit of Their Majesties so that all legislation disallowed by the courts could be submitted to them.

Termination of the agreement with the R.C.M.P. for policing the province is another resolution subject.

NORTH TO GET RADIO PHONES DURING SPRING

Next spring will see the linking of the whole Peace River [illegible] with Edmonton by radio telephone, J. D. Baker, deputy minister of telephones for the provincial government and general manager of the Alberta government telephone system, announced Friday.

Calls from any town in the Peace River district to points beyond Edmonton, Mr. Baker explained, will be charged at the regular rate plus the $1.70 that has been provisionally set as the cost of a three-minute conversation to this city.

All towns are now connected by government telephones in the district, but there has been no link with Edmonton.

Major and Minor Notes

By JOHN OLIVER

With Christmas and New Year's festivities now well in the past, the musical season is gearing up to its climax and from now on until it too passes, there will be an almost steady flow of important events. Since the turn of the year, there has been a lull in musical activities, the only major event being the meeting two weeks ago of the Women's Musical Club, when a lecture-recital on the virginal and its music was given. Beginning next week the events will [illegible] with fairly regular sequence until the end of June when even the teaching studios fold up for the year. At the half-way mark one pauses and reflects with satisfaction on what has taken place already this season and looks forward with anticipation to that which is to come.

Meanwhile Ben Hur has met with kinder fortune. In a fight with pirates Arrius' ship was sunk and the Roman almost lost his life. He was saved by Ben Hur. The Roman took the Jew to Rome and later gave him his name and fortune.

But during these luxurious years, the Jewish exile never lost sight of his revenge nor of his grief for his mother and sister. At the death of Arrius, Ben Hur set out at once for the Holy Land, seeking news of them.

Going first to Antioch he found Simonides, slave of his father and steward of the family inheritance. Although put to the torture, the slave had never revealed the secrets of Prince Hur. So at this time Ben Hur received a second fortune in gold and jewels and other treasure.

His first plan was revenge over Messala. This came in double portion for Ben Hur defeated the Roman before all the notables gathered for the chariot races. Messala lost a second time, by betting against the Jew. But worst, in the wreck of his chariot, Messala was so crippled that he never walked again.

Meanwhile the Christ was fulfilling his mission on earth. Fame of his healing spread abroad, coming to the lepers outside Jerusalem. ## FOR PUZZLE MEN ONLY

A LITTLE while ago I wrote a "piece in the papers" about "puzzle men." By a puzzle man I meant a man who is never happy unless he is working out a puzzle. He carries it round with him, as men used to carry a chew of tobacco. You see him sitting in a railway train gazing fixedly out of the window. But he sees nothing. He doesn't know whether he's going through the Adirondacks or over the Susquehanna. He's got a puzzle inside him; he's trying to think how a farmer with a 10-gallon can and a three-gallon can and a two-gallon can manages to measure out six gallons of milk.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

These puzzle-men, when you understand them, are singularly easy to entertain if you have them on your hands in your house. Just throw them a puzzle. All you do is to say, to such a man, "Bentley, I saw a good puzzle the other day but I couldn't work it. It said, 'A shopman has a piece of linoleum 12 feet by 12 feet and a customer wants a piece 16 feet by nine feet—same number of square yards but different shape. The shopman says, "All you need to do is to cut this 12 by 12 piece into two parts and place them together." "Only two parts?" asks the perplexed customer. "Only two," says the shopman. "Now how could he do that, Bentley?"

And with that Bentley is off. You don't need to think of him any more all evening. He'll just sit around and murmur, "Sixteen feet by nine." Then he won't speak for a long time, till he says, "Linoleum, eh?" You don't need to talk to him, or amuse him or to let him cut in at bridge. Just turn from the card table now and then to say, "Linoleum, that's right, Bentley." If he gets restless, give him a Scotch and soda and let him walk up and down, and mutter, "Twelve by twelve." He's all set for the evening.

When I wrote the piece in the papers I let it go at that. I got angry answers from correspondents from New Brunswick to New Mexico, reproaching me with setting an unsolvable problem. But it isn't. It is quite easy. You just divide the square pieces with a set of lines across it four feet apart. Then cut the pattern into two pieces one of which starts as nine feet wide and gets three feet narrower for each four feet it goes down. The piece you have cut off will slide sideways three feet and fit under the other and make a new piece nine by sixteen. Try it. If you can't do it, see a doctor.

EXTENSION OF ALBERTA LINES IS REASONABLE

Boundaries Would Include Rich Mineral Areas

Extension of Alberta's boundaries to the Arctic Circle is reasonable because the outlets from these mining areas lie through this province, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, declared in addressing a banquet at the Masonic Temple on Friday held in connection with the third annual convention of the Alberta Social Credit League.

More than 250 attended the banquet, of which John Guild, president of the Edmonton Constituency Social Credit organization, was chairman of the banquet.

At the head table were Premier William and Mrs. Aberhart; Hon. Ernest C. and Mrs. Manning; Hon. Lucien and Mrs. Maynard; Hon. Solon E. and Mrs. Low; Hon. W. A. and Mrs. Fallow; Hon. Dr. W. W. and Mrs. Cross; Rev. Peter and Mrs. Dawson; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Goodwin; Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Mueller and others.

Mr. Fallow declared that, in replying to the toast to the Province of Alberta, he was particularly pleased to state that iron, copper and some tin had been discovered in commercial quantities in the Great Bear Lake area.

HAVE SOME IDEA

"When you know this you will have some idea of the reason behind Premier Aberhart's desire to secure for the people of Alberta the administration of the lands in which these minerals lie. You will understand why he is seeking to have the boundaries of Alberta extended through to the Arctic. You will understand why we are pushing ahead with our road construction program in the far north and you will understand why we will need your support in our efforts to bring these changes about."

Continuing, Mr. Fallow said in part:

"It is not an unusual thing for the provinces of Canada to have their boundaries extended. Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba have had their boundaries extended. Now, Alberta only asks for similar treatment and there will be no objections raised by your Alberta government to the proposed acquisition of the Yukon territory by British Columbia.

"The extension of Alberta's boundaries to include these new sources of great wealth is reasonable because the outlets from these mining areas lie through Alberta—either by way of the Athabasca route to Edmonton, or, eventually by the Hay River route through Peace River and Grande Prairie.

SUFFICIENT TRAFFIC

"We believe—in fact, we already know—that there will be sufficient traffic to keep both routes more than busy, and with so much natural gas and coal at our disposal so close to the mines themselves, it is easy to visualize the day when Edmonton, Grande Prairie and Peace River may be vying with each other for supremacy as the Pittsburgh of the prairies.

"Your government, under leadership of Premier Aberhart, whose vision and foresight led to immediate action sought at the earliest possible time to secure for the people of this province the rights to those coarse metal deposits in the north. Your government seeks these tremendous resources for you, the people of Alberta, because they rightly belong to you.

"The development of these minerals, the employment of thousands of Alberta citizens, the manufacture of products made from them is a matter of first importance to the people of Alberta because revenues from these sources will help so materially to reduce the the cost of living, the rate of taxation and eventually the debt burden of this province.

COST OF LIVING

"The cost of living will be reduced because the long freight hauls we pay on everything we import will be virtually eliminated. The burden of taxation will be reduced, not only because persons now unemployed will be given work and cease to be charges on the taxpayers [illegible].

"Taxation will be reduced also because more persons gainfully employed will be able to share the burden—will be able to pay their share of taxation which is now borne by others.

"With these two considerations in mind—the reduction of living costs and taxation—it will be seen that, since more wealth will be produced, there will be a greater possibility that debts, both public and private, may be paid."

The toast was proposed by Mrs. Gilchrist, who pointed out that there were 97,000 farms in Alberta and that this province's educational system was considered on a high plane. She paid a warm tribute to Premier William Aberhart for his leadership of the government.

Items of entertainment were given by Hector Wyman, Jack Jones, B. Batchi and with Roberta W[illegible] [illegible].

Time Too Short For Convention

Originally scheduled for Thursday and Friday, the main business of the gathering had hardly more than got under way when adjournment time came on Friday. Therefore the gathering decided to continue [illegible] the constitution will take place as well as discussion of various resolutions.

City to Dress Up For Royalty Visit: Stores Buy Stocks

Edmonton will be dressed in its holiday best when the king and queen come to town.

Union Jacks will float from every flagstaff, stores will flaunt brilliant bunting, tiny silk flags will flutter from buttonholes and nearly every home and automobile will be festooned in patriotic splendor when Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth visit here June 2.

Wholesale hardware and drygoods houses already have stocks of flags and bunting in their warehouses and larger supplies on order, all in preparation for decking the city out to welcome the king and queen of Canada.

A number of large retail stores also have placed orders for flags and bunting, both for store decoration and to sell to the thousands of citizens who will turn out to cheer the monarchs whose voyage brings them across the sea to greet their Canadian subjects.

SPIRIT OF CELEBRATION

"It is a little bit early to get started distributing decorations yet," one wholesale firm manager said, "but the wholesale hardware and drygoods companies are trying to encourage the spirit of celebration and to make flags and decorations accessible for the retailers."

Colored electric lights are kept in stock regularly, this wholesale man said, and can be had at any time.

One large English firm has written to the mayor asking for maps of the city streets in order that it may bid for decorations which would be "tailored" for this city.

FIREWORKS DISPLAY

On the night of the visit of Their Majesties, the departure of the royal visitors may be signalized by a burst of fireworks, illuminating the Edmonton skies, as one alderman in a private conversation has suggested that a large pyrotechnic display, properly engineered, would be an effective climax to one of the greatest days in this city's calendar.

Strike At End: Work Proceeds District Mines

Work as usual was the order at the four mines in the Rabbit Hills district at which a lightning strike seeking union recognition and higher wages was called last week. Friday the union officials officially called off the strike. Operators at the mine stated work was proceeding normally and that most of the striking miners had been taken back.

The Inquiring Reporter

A few days ago an astonished young lady awoke to find herself the heiress to several million dollars, part of the estate of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, late owner of the New York Yankees and Yankee magnate. "Just what would you do if you should have a few million crisp new dollars dumped into your lap?" The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter asked several hard - working young ladies today. Here are their replies:

EILEEN McPEAKE, store employee: First thing I'd do with as much money as Helen Winthrope Weyent has would be to go on a three-year trip around the world. Then I'd settle down in a multi-roomed shanty with several servants and a couple of cars. . . and, of course a wardrobe of silks and furs, etc. But don't bother me now. Just leave me alone with this hamburger and coffee. This is real at least.

MABEL CLONEY, beautician: If that much money dropped into my pocket-book from the sky, I'd just faint dead away. But when they had revived me, I'd go to town with a vengeance. All the things in the line of clothes and jewels and cars I would have but I wouldn't go high hat about it, for there are plenty of needy people who would benefit from a few million that I would be able to strew around.

• • •

BETTY BROWN, musician: I would have the best lessons from the finest music teacher in the world, and I would see that all the ambitious young stars with real talent would have a chance to show the world that they are really worthy of support. I think I would like to stay in Edmonton.

Wed 60 Years Today

Pictured above are Mr. and Mrs. James M. Clarke, 10954 124 street, who celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary Saturday. Mr. Clarke is 82. Mrs. Clarke, whose maiden names is Bertha Jane Farquharson, is 78. They came to Alberta in 1900 from Prince Edward Island and to Edmonton in 1907.

City Couple Celebrate Sixtieth Wedding Date

Today, January 28, is a mighty important day in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Clarke, who live at 10954 124 street. January 28 was, in fact, a very important day for them both 60 years ago and has been every year since. For on that day, 1879, they were married in the town in which they were both born and brought up, Mount Stewart, P.E.I.

This evening, with their children and grandchildren they will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with a dinner at the Springer hotel.

They came to Alberta from the east in 1900, settling on a farm in the Lacombe district. Seven years later Mr. Clarke sold the farm and moved, with his wife, formerly Bertha Jane Farquharson, into Edmonton so that their family might have the advantages offered by the city schools. He established himself as a lumber merchant, a business in which he continued [illegible] he retired about 10 years ago.

Both have been [illegible] church supporters and are [illegible] of Robertson United church. Mr. Clarke was a member [illegible] of managers of the first R[illegible] church when it was [illegible] 116 street at the present [illegible] Patricia hall.

They have 3 daughters: Mrs. W. H. Scott, Vermilion; Mrs. W. S. Hamilton, Edmonton; Miss H[illegible] Clarke, Edmonton and [illegible]; Dr. J. L. Clarke, Didsbury; Dr. W. H. Clarke, Vermilion, and W[illegible] Clarke, Sedgewick, and ten grandchildren: Lorna and Bruce Clarke, Didsbury; Bob and Don Clarke, Vermilion; Lelia and M[illegible] Scott, Vermilion; Jim and Ver[illegible] Clarke, Sedgewick, and Jack and Betty Jean Hamilton, Edmonton.

EFFORT MADE TO ERADICATE HORSE MALADY

Mullen Reports Prairie Provinces To Co-Operate In Action

Concerted effort will be made by Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba this year to eradicate sleeping sickness among horses, according to Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture. This disease caused widespread damage to the horse population of this province last year.

"As a result of conference with the ministers of agriculture for Manitoba and Saskatchewan, we have completed arrangements for a concerted effort to stamp out sleeping sickness among the horses throughout the three prairie provinces. The Alberta government has arranged for a supply of the chick vaccine necessary for the treatment of horses in Alberta. We were able to obtain the vaccine in large quantities and it will be distributed through drug stores, veterinarians and municipal secretaries and made available early in the spring," said Hon. Mr. Mullen.

"Positive immunity from the disease may be obtained if the animals are properly vaccinated early in the season. Prevention is the only way to combat the disease as once a horse has contracted sleeping sickness it is too late to vaccinate. If a horse is vaccinated two years in succession it will probably be permanently immune.

Experts predict that 1939 holds the threat of the "peak" for the disease in the current cycle, making the precautionary measures we are taking all the more necessary.

We invite the co-operation of all municipal secretaries, druggists and veterinarians in the campaign to prevent loss of horses in Alberta.

POLICE CHIEF GOES CURLING TO CELEBRATE

Another milestone in the life of Chief Constable Anthony G. Shute of the city police force was celebrated Saturday. The chief is 62 years old today.

"How are you going to celebrate the occasion?" he was asked.

"Quietly, very quietly," replied the genial head of the force. "I'll probably go curling as I did last night."

He was born in Holland Centre, seven miles from Owen Sound, Ont., in 1877.

Royalties Increase

The bow-and-arrow is the primitive weapon of the chase. Therefore, archery is very popular in the colleges for women. The wily redman also was good at archery and painting the face.

William Tell was a famous archer who split an apple on his son's head with an arrow. In the story, no one ever tells who wiped the cider out of the boy's eyes, or picked the seeds from his hair.

Writers always mention the "twang of the arrow." This means that the arrow has an accent and [illegible]

A Bulletin Short Story Complete On This Page Every Saturday

THE court room door swung back slowly and Clover Lane walked [illegible] like a medieval page, her head thrown back, her fair hair swept [illegible] in a Garbo bob, and her blue eyes, pale as aquamarines, fastened on the Judge.

His glance swooped in her direction, cold with reproof for the interruption. [illegible] she slid [illegible] into the one vacant chair at the press table. Only that morning he had warned the reporters to [illegible] their restless comings and goings. This was a murder trial, not a [illegible] but she had had [illegible] to a telephone call to her office.

"And what are you doing here?" he demanded, as Clover and Matty got out of the car.

"What would your guess be, Inspector?" Matty retorted. "We got a murder tip [illegible] it can't be any news to you."

"Was the Judge on the bench when you left?"

"Yes," said Clover. "He was."

"Couldn't have got the message then," said Inspector Gluck reflectively.

"Who's dead?" demanded Matty.

"Name's Audrey Harrington. She lived on the next estate. She was found over there—in the summer house—shot through the head. It looks as if she was listening to the radio when her number was up. The [illegible] found her slumped on the [illegible]. Yes, Matty, she was young, good-looking and what you would call a lovely brunette."

"Thanks," said Matty. "Any suspects?"

"Don't let your imagination run riot," warned Gluck. "Nobody said this was murder. All we know is [illegible]

[illegible] booth in a dreary vine-trellised roadhouse a quarter of a mile away Clover got Mr. Levitt on the wire.

"I'll send out two men at once," he told her. "Go over to the Harrington house and see what you can dig up there. Give everything you have got in the way of straight news to Duncan Beals, who will be out there in a couple of hours. Do a "feature" on the women yourself. This story's too big for you to cover single-handed."

Clover hung up the receiver slowly, her exhilaration gone. Hank, whistling cheerfully as he rustled through his notes, saw the clouds gather in the [illegible] blue eyes.

"Taking the story from you, kid?" he sympathized. "Buck up. It takes a long time to make the grade in this business. You're only a baby [illegible]

CLOVER MAKES DISCOVERY

PROMPTLY at noon Clover was ushered into the library of the Bryant home, but at half past no one had yet appeared. Restless, she began to study the book shelves that ran from floor to ceiling. One section was devoted to the Judge's legal books. Nearby was a murder series—the actual court records of famous crimes.

Still abstracted, she noticed a Florentine volume of tooled leather, squeezed in among the series, no title in evidence. It looked so out of place that she drew it out and saw at once that it was a fake book—a novelty, hollow in the centre, to hold cigarettes or trinkets. She opened it and almost let it drop, for snug in the cut-out paper nest lay an automatic.

Clover came to life. Her brain worked like lightning. She covered it with her handkerchief, took it out with trembling fingers, and slipped it into her purse. She had just returned the book to its place when Mrs. Bryant appeared at the door.

"I was looking at your books," Clover [illegible]

[illegible]

Her voice had a rich, deep quality [illegible]

Inexperienced as she was, Clover knew that she should go straight to Inspector Gluck with the gun. This was stretching the freedom of the press rather far. But she had no in[illegible]

[illegible] hours of questioning had set in. Skillfully she drew him out. For an hour she induced him to talk about his interests, his travels, his hobbies. Then, so gently that he scarcely noticed the transition, she brought him down to the day of the murder. He was on his third brandy and soda, his jumpiness was gone, he was mellowing fast.

"But don't you remember anything that was said at lunch, anything that Miss Harrington said, anything that Mrs. Bryant said, anything that you said?" Clover urged him.

"We didn't say anything of importance at all—just the usual chit chat and then Audrey let slip something about the wedding."

"[illegible]"

"Well, you know it hadn't been announced yet."

"Didn't Mrs. Bryant know?"

"No. Why should she?"

[illegible] and backing out of the room.

On her way out Clover [illegible]

[illegible] Bremner's [illegible] Mrs. Eliot Green. [illegible] But say, you aren't a reporter, are you, by any chance?" "Yes." "How in Hades did you get upstairs?"

"I walked," said Clover sweetly.

In swift succession she visited Bremner's garage, two smart [illegible] night clubs [illegible]

AN ACCUSATION

SHE reached the Bryant home [illegible]

[illegible]

"I think I've solved the Harrington murder," [illegible]

[illegible] "Well, what are you driving at?" he demanded. "You [illegible] Miss Harrington [illegible]

[illegible] gers tightening over his knees and the muscles tightening around his mouth. But his voice was quiet and judicial as he asked: "Are you talking without proof, Miss Lane?"

"No, no, I'm not. I took your wife's photograph from my office. I had it identified at the apartment house, at the garage, at night clubs and restaurants. There isn't any doubt that she and Mrs. Eliot Green are the same person. The man from my paper who checked up on Bremner came on her trail at every turn. . . . That isn't all. At lunch Bremner announced his engagement to Audrey after she had let slip some mention of it. He told me so himself last night. . . . Motive! What more do you want?"

Clover's heart hammered so hard that she felt she must suffocate. Oh God what a thing to do to a man, she thought, but necessity drove her on: "Now I shall have to go to Gluck with my story—and the automatic."

"Wait!" Judge Bryant hesitated for a moment. "I'll call in my wife. She'll show you how absurd all this is."

A CONFESSION

JUSTICE BRYANT turned his back on Clover, and went out of the room and came back a moment later with his wife. Her eyes were heavy. She glanced in turn at Clover, at her husband, and at the automatic lying half hidden on the desk. There was a swift impact which she buried in the casual gesture of lighting a cigarette.

Her husband made no attempt to pave the way for her. "Miss Lane is here with the strange theory that you shot Audrey," he told her [illegible] "And with my automatic. You didn't, did you?"

Mrs. Bryant drew slowly on her cigarette, said nothing.

"And that it was because of Bremner," he went on in the same controlled tone.

Still she said nothing. For a moment he stared at her, then was galvanized into protective action. He stepped between her and Clover. "You must go at once, Miss Lane," he said.

Clover stood her ground. "Not till I've finished," she told him.

Mrs. Bryant crushed out her cigarette, got up with swift resolution, faced them both. "I've just been thinking what to do." [illegible] no effort to be careful. You see, I wasn't thinking clearly [illegible] John [illegible]

[illegible] I found that she had taken the gun. She stared at it, lying on the desk, and shuddered. "Yes, I killed Audrey. There's no use denying it. I shot her as she sat listening to the radio."

She stopped speaking and held her temples. Clover shivered in the sunshine that fell across the lovely, soft-toned room. She watched Justice Bryant put his arm around his wife. "Why, Mary?" he asked her somberly.

"John," she said. "It's hard to tell you. What the girl says is true. It was because of Dick [illegible] it goes far back, when you were so absorbed in your work. Joan was growing up and away from me, the days were empty . . . the mad [illegible] Call it anything you like. It started quite by chance, then [illegible] and insistent and terrible in my life, so that I grew reckless—"

She broke off and covered her face with her hands. Clover had retreated into the shadows near the door and both of them, in the intensity of their emotion, had forgotten her presence.

Mrs. Bryant's voice, trembling now, went on: "I had no warning of his love for Audrey—not an inkling of it till she suddenly blurted it out at the table, looking so young and lovely, Dick so clearly her slave and tired of me. . . . You could scarcely understand, John, knowing me as you do. . . . I wasn't altogether cold, then something seemed to explode in my head. But I kept quite cool, to all appearances. Then Dick was called away and then I thought of the gun, of the Summer house. . . . You know the rest."

Her whole body was quivering now. "Afterwards it was more awful than I thought. I brought the gun back to the library. I meant to return it to your desk after wiping it off. Then I [illegible] Venetian book where I sometimes keep trinkets. I slipped it in. I forgot about fingerprints—everything.

"That's all. [illegible] For years I've been hearing about your murderesses, John. Perhaps all that talk was in my head. I came to my senses the minute I had fired the gun. All the hate went out of me. But too late. I see quite clearly now that I was mad. . . . Oh, John, John! What will we do now? Your career, Dick, Joan—everything!"

At last she noticed Clover, standing [illegible]

"That girl," she cried, "get her out of here." [illegible]

Justice Bryant turned to Clover [illegible]

He picked up the telephone receiver and called Gluck. His wife shrank deeper into the cushions. "Come over at once, Gluck," he said. "We've solved the Harrington murder."

There was a moment's pause as Gluck put the obvious question.

"My wife," Justice Bryant told him slowly.

TOO LATE TO STOP

TOO late to stop anything now! Clover fled from the room, rushed down the drive and sped to the roadhouse where she and Hank had found the telephone. She gave Charlie Levitt a brief outline of her story.

"Great scott, girl," he said, "are you sure this isn't a pipe dream? I take back everything, everything. Give Sanders everything you can on re-write then hop to Western Union and do your stuff—all that it takes, every minute of that scene between the Judge and his wife. You can have a start on the others and it's close to the first edition. Now pull yourself together, Clover. You sound hysterical to me."

She hung up hurriedly. Sobbing not with triumph, but because she could not forget Justice Bryant's face, Clover stumbled blindly out of the telephone booth and straight into Hank's not unwilling arms.

"I couldn't hear what you said, but I gather from the touching scene through glass that it's another bawling out from the office," Hank volunteered.

"Not this time, Hank, but I certainly have the jitters."

He took out his handkerchief and mopped her eyes. "Softie," he said. "Where were you last night? Did you have any sleep? The gang couldn't find you anywhere," Hank [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] she went off to her own taxi. How white she looked, he thought. A dear kid but she would never make the grade as a reporter. "Judge Bryant's home," Hank told the driver. "And step on it."

"That girl," she cried, "get her out of here."

The transaction is the biggest in gold ever carried out in the City of London. Its object is to stop the flight from the pound which has been going on since last May which has reduced the dollar rate of exchange during that period from rather more than $5 to about $4.62 and which now threatens to deprive American exporters of much of the benefit that should accrue from the new trade pact between Great Britain and the United States.

The Exchange Account was instituted to stabilize exchange and has been worked in conjunction with similar measures taken by France and the United States. [illegible]

None but wealthy men can afford such sums and consequently it is generally recognized in Conservative circles that a young and enthusiastic and capable man who cannot pay heavily for the privilege has small chance of being adopted for a division where he is likely to be returned.

The matter came up at the Conservative conference in 1937 but although a committee was appointed nothing has been done about it. It has lately been brought to the fore by a letter to a leading Conservative paper from a Conservative candidate.

The enterprise is designed to bring together the young people of the British Empire and the world. It was launched by Lord Bessborough at a meeting of the Association of [illegible]

"Youth City" will be designed as a home for the thousands of young people who come to London every year from all parts of the world. It is hoped that it will remedy the existing shortage of suitable accommodation, provide easier means for students from the Empire to become acquainted with the capital [illegible] "the essential foundations of the British people."

The projected building will provide extensive hostel accommodation and social amenities but the aim goes further than this. The promoters want to make it "the home of an Order of Chivalry."

Rescue Ship Battling Storms

With his fragile plane yawing crazily under the lash of an icy gale, Joseph Boyle, NEA Service's flying cameraman, located the homing rescue ship Esso Baytown 70 miles east of Sea Girt, N.J. He took this exclusive picture of the tanker fighting through angrily boiling seas toward New York with the survivors of the sunken British flying boat Cavalier. On a previous unsuccessful quest for the Esso Baytown, Boyle flew 100 miles over the storm-ridden Atlantic and back.

Sea Heroes Cheat Davy Jones

Here are the members of the heroic lifeboat crew of the Esso Baytown, who enacted a true saga of the sea in their daring fight against terrific odds to save the survivors of the flying boat Cavalier from the stormy waters of the Atlantic ocean. Through their efforts 10 survivors of the Cavalier's cargo of 13, were brought safely to shore. One lifeboat was swamped and lost before the rescue could be completed. Left to right, the men are: Stanley Taylor, of Boston; John Goodwin, of Boston; Thomas J. Brady, of White Haven, Pa.; John Thomaschek, of Black Wood, N.J.; Howell Smith, of Mobile, Alabama, and Joe Miller, of Tappahanock, Virginia.

With old appropriate formality and ritual, Mrs. Seton Challen (left), was recently enthroned for life as the most worshipful the Grand Master of the Honorable Fraternity of Ancient Freemasons, at the Masonic Temple in London. This 25-year-old organization works from the first to the thirty-third degree, and claims to give women Masonry in its pure form and in its entirety. Mrs. Challen is a daughter of the organizer of the lodge, and is herself the last of the founders. At the right is the lodge's Grand Sword Bearer, Mrs. Phyllis Sutton Vane, during the installation ceremony, which, by the way, lasted three hours.

Heroes of the miraculous rescue of 10 people from the sinking wreck of the British flying boat Cavalier are the two men above. At left is Captain Frank H. Spurr, skipper of the rescue ship Esso Baytown, and at right, his chief officer, Olaf Anderson, who was in charge of lifeboats that picked up the survivors.

Man to Man

EDMONTON fight fans have already had a look at King Kong Clayton [illegible] speedy looking fighting man.

Lynch makes no secret of the fact that it was hopes of getting a crack at Wenstob that lured him into accepting this fight against Clayton. He knows that with Wenstob the western Canada champion and highly rated throughout the boxing world, he could do himself a lot of good if he could punch out a win over him. He figures that he is at a stage now where he is ready to start going places in fistiana and he thinks that Eddie Wenstob is an opponent he should not overlook.

You never can be sure of just how good a fight card is going to be until it is all over, but unless all indications go haywire Tuesday's [illegible] should be big values at the scale of prices being charged. Clayton is facing a real cyclone in Tommy Lynch.

Lions Get Behind Hockey

ALWAYS active in support of good sport that will benefit the city, the Edmonton Lions Club has thrown its full weight and support into a drive to get better attendance for the Eskimos in their remaining home games, believing that senior hockey is an asset to the city and that the Sport Booster Club deserves better public support in efforts to provide better [illegible]

[illegible] column.

"We believe that the Sport Booster Club deserves a salute from every citizen for the work it has done in building for better sport here," the letter states. "These Boosters are giving generously of time, ability and money to start this city off toward better and better hockey in the years to come. They have already laid a groundwork that will ensure the type of hockey everyone wants, but Rome wasn't built in a day and neither is an Allan cup team.

"These Boosters naturally expected that the sport loving public would appreciate their efforts and [illegible] the Lions Club regrets to report that the public has fallen [illegible] ably in this respect. Support must be mustered if Edmonton is ever going to get the sort of hockey it wants.

In making a survey of the situation, we have many excuses [illegible] for lack of support, but we have not heard one sound argument [illegible] Some blame the team, while as a matter of fact it is the fans [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] discourage the team instead of encourage it. Calgary had a team that [illegible] games than the Eskimos, but Calgary [illegible] [illegible] only support a team that wins all the time? We refuse to believe this

"4,500 Fans For Wednesday"

ESKIMOS will play their next home game on Wednesday against Calgary. Let us get [illegible] [illegible] for that game [illegible] 4,500 [illegible] the sort of rousing support that carried our teams to victory in years in the past.

"The Lions Club is appealing to every service club in the city to join in the drive to get a minimum of 4,500 fans out for each of the Eskimos' remaining home games. If we can do that, the Boosters will be able to carry out their plans for a really good team next season and eventually an Allan cup winner. If such support can not be obtained, Edmonton may be left without a senior team next season."

It would be hard to put the situation better than Jim Kellas has done in the above letter. Edmonton's hockey fate lies on the laps of the fans.

Ludwig Too Tough Claim Fans After Hartay Conquest; Can Bob Take Him?

By JACK DEAKIN

Bob "Bad Boy" Cummings, that [illegible] wrestling fandom after him again. [illegible] They have a [illegible] for Bob, too, for they figure he is the [illegible] needed against Otto Ludwig who last night at the Memorial Hall convinced one and all that he was much too tough for George Hartay. Ludwig won the odd fall in a three-fall bout against Hartay, [illegible] to first place in the mid-[illegible] tournament.

JUST OVERHEARD

[illegible] have to be psychic, nor [illegible] to read the minds of those [illegible] out of the Memorial Hall [illegible] [illegible] dwelt on the fact that Ludwig was one tough rascal and [illegible] elected [illegible]

[illegible] great try last night, [illegible] too much for him [illegible] mixed a lot of good wrestling [illegible] two-footed and double knee attack. In taking the first fall after some 12 minutes of testing holds, Ludwig connected a serviceable knee to jutting chin and weakened the Hungarian enough to pin him with a body press.

Stronger after the breather, Hartay lowered Ludwig to the canvas with that corkscrew headlock, clicking on the spinner after twice failing.

With but a few minutes remaining, Hartay erred badly. He made a desperate lunge at Ludwig with a drop kick and, before the first hilarious cry left their lips, the fans saw Hartay swinging in a wide arc around the ring, Ludwig propelling him as he caught Hartay by the legs.

Curtains rang down for Hartay a [illegible] for over for a Boston Crab. Hartay cried "uncle" in his best tenor.

Gust Johnson took over second place in the standings, taking a one-fall win against King Kong Clayton to boost his total to five points, one behind Ludwig who stepped out in front with six points.

CLOSE DOESN'T COUNT.

Johnson's fall came about midway in the [illegible] time limit go. He flipped King Kong several times, before finally weighing the powerful ebony man's shoulders to the mat. After that fall, neither could gain the final press, but several times had each others shoulders a hair's breadth from the mat.

Graham Nelson returned home from Montana to hit the point column last night. Graham felled Jimmy Britt in two of three falls. He won the first by armlocks and the last by body slam.

By virtue of triumphs last night the standings at the end of four weeks gives Ludwig six points; Johnson five; Clayton four; Hartay three; Cummings two, Jackson two and Nelson two.

Maher, Steed and La Rose scored for E.A.C. while Scramstad was credited with two assist points and Baker with one. McAra tallied the lone Leaf goal unassisted.

Slick as a Whistle

ROBIN LEE

Fourteen years ago this winter, a little blond-haired kid, barely of kindergarten age, ventured onto the frozen surface of a St. Paul pond. He couldn't skate a lick so he took no chances. He wore a pair of double-runners, the most fool-proof of all ice skates. It was a humble beginning all right, but today Robin Lee at 19 is men's national figure skating champion . . . has been for five straight years . . . represented Uncle Sam in the winter Olympics in Germany when he was only 16.

He won his fifth straight title in the national meet at St. Paul just one week ago today.

Austria's Felix Kaspar, 1936 Olympic champion, is as good as ever, says Robin, and probably will be in the Olympic lists in 1940. What chances would young Mr. Lee have of beating him? "He's awfully good," smiles young Mr. Lee. But so is Robin Lee, and then you notice it is a confident smile which Robin wears.

Rousing Action Promised Intermediate Loop Tonight

THE Intermediate Hockey League swings into double-barreled action tonight with all four teams in the circuit joining battle. Both games promise to be filled with plenty of wide-open hockey as Capitals tangle with the powerful E.A.C. junior sextet at the Arena while Civics meet the fast-striding University of Alberta Golden Bears at the Varsity rink. Both games are scheduled to start at 9:00 p.m.

Civics have a chance to pull up on even terms with the first-place Capitals if they turn in a win tonight and the Bears will have to be clicking on all cylinders if they hope to continue their undefeated win streak that has carried them through their last three games.

Duke Keats and Bill Runge will do the whistle-tooting at the Arena, while "Pep" Moon and Art Townsend will handle the contest at Varsity.

BRACE GAMES ARE SCHEDULED ARENA SUNDAY

It's bargain Sunday at the Arena tomorrow afternoon with two games booked at the east end ice arena. At 2 p.m., Edmonton Athletic Club's midgets will swing into action against Maple Leaf midgets while at 3 p.m., the regular junior game will top the program as E.A.C. meet Canadians in a scheduled contest.

Now tied with Maple Leafs for the lead, E.A.C. will be hot after a win against the Canadians Sunday. The Clubmen have piled up fair win margins against the Canadians, but the highlight whenever these teams play each other is the sparkling wide open hockey. Canadians play a wide open brand. They skate fast and paced by Don Culley, Harry Black and Tommy Dunn who played with the senior Eskimos recently against Olds Elks, the Canadians have made it really interesting to the fans and warm for the big blue and gold squad.

Lynch Displays Impressive Form In Preparation For Clayton Battle

Interest in Tuesday night's fight card at the Memorial Hall here boomed upward with a rush Friday when Tommy Lynch of Kalispell, Montana, went through a light workout at the York gym in preparation for his 10-round main event with King Kong Clayton.

Lynch gave every promise of being all that has been claimed for him—a hard-hitting light heavy who can step as fast as many a lightweight. Standing six feet in height and carrying 170 pounds of solid bone and lithe muscles, the Montana battler looks every inch a fighter. His workout yesterday was restricted to loosening up exercises, but at 3 p.m. today he will spar with Gordon Grayston.

Tommy Lunch has been throwing leather in western U.S. rings for [illegible] 64 professional fights and [illegible] six of them. He won 34 of them by knockouts.

IMPRESSIVE RECORDS

Included among his kayoe victims is Lorenzo Pedro, the highly rated Californian whom Wenstob fights at Vancouver on Feb. 8. Lynch won a decision over Pedro in 'Frisco in 1935. Some of the better known fighters that Lynch has knocked out are Bearcat Baker in the third, Jerome Lewis in the fifth and Henk Mobely in the third. Mobely was the world amateur light heavyweight champion, a colored boy.

Clear eyed and the picture of health, Lynch declares he is ready to shoot the works against Clayton in the hope that he may earn a shot at Eddie Wenstob.

KING KONG CONFIDENT

The herculean Clayton however has an idea that he would like to swap punches with Wenstob himself and is convinced that he can turn loose enough punching power to stop the admittedly fast and clever Lynch. Clayton will go through a sparring drill tonight at 7 p.m. in the York Gym.

With a supporting card that promises plenty of furious action and in [illegible] several knockouts, Tuesday's fight bill is producing encouraging box office response. If the ticket sale continues at its present rate, the house may be completely sold out.

SCONA SEXTET TRIUMPHS 7-3 STUDENT LOOP

Strathcona Juniors chalked up another point in the win column last night as they routed Victoria 7-3 in a rugged High School Hockey League fixture played at the Scona Centre rink, Friday.

Several fights enlivened the game, one of the roughest played to date in the high school circuit. On several occasions, players on both teams discarded sticks and gloves ready for a general melee.

Almost single-handed Bud Patry turned back the hard-skating Victoria sextet as he rattled four goals past the bewildered Victoria custodian to give his team the winning margin. Howie Bledgen turned in a fine display between the pipes for the South Side students, kicking out the flying rubber with nonchalant ease.

FAST PACE.

Hitting a blazing pace from the opening face-off Patry blasted in two goals in the opening period and added another pair in the second canto. Stevenson and Cuthbertson tallied for Victoria in the opening session.

Isaac Forbes and Steenstea completed the rout of the Victoria club in the final period by scoring a goal each. Williams tallied the third Victoria goal in the final canto.

Oilers Cop Second Place Tie With Win Margin Over Miners

OKOTOKS, Alta., Jan. 28.—Turner Valley Oilers defeated Drumheller Miners 8-3 in a hectic fast Alberta Senior Hockey League game here last night which featured two fistic encounters, brilliant goalkeeping by Bill McKay of Oilers and erratic shooting by Miners who were endeavoring to catch up with the league leaders, Lethbridge Maple Leafs.

As a result of the contest the Valley team moved into second place tie with Miners, six points behind the Leafs. Pete Atkinson, right wing star, who formerly played with Sudbury and North Battleford Beavers, scored four goals while his centre mate, Doug Cairns, bagged two. Percy Davis, defenceman, and Andy Chakowski, left winger of the second string, each got a goal. Reg. Bentley, "Irish" O'Brien and Max Bentley netted for the Miners.

Miners, recognized as one of the speediest aggregations in the league, kept up their recently acquired "bad men" reputation by providing [illegible] boxing show [illegible] the last period [illegible] third successive game this week.

FIGHT IN THIRD

In the third period each team had only four men on the ice for five minutes. After the first fight Cairns and Howie Hill of Oilers, and Bill Wright and Bob Bobroski of Miners, served major sentences. So many fans crowded around the teams in the near riot at the end of the game it was impossible to determine what players were involved.

More than 1,?00 customers watched their Elmer Piper coached gang come from behind twice before building up a substantial lead in the last 20 minutes.

McKay, a stand-out custodian in the Kootenay league of British Columbia last year, was kept busy. Miners had far more chances to score than the homesters but they lacked finish around the net. Credit for part [illegible] Chakowski [illegible].

MINERS LEAD

Reg Bentley on a relay from Kennedy, put Drumheller in the lead in [illegible] canto had just started when Atkinson got the goal back. O'Brien scored unassisted at 15:20. Davis, defenceman, tied it up for Oilers a minute later. The Valley went two up on quick goals by Atkinson and Andy Chakowski [illegible] of the period.

Cairns made the count 5-1 with Tiny Craddock assisting as the third period opened. In the final six minutes Atkinson scored twice and Cairns netted in the final second, while Max Bentley on a relay from Brother Doug scored Drumheller's third goal.

LINEUPS

Westmount Skaters Take Major Honors Scona Meet

ATTENDED by some 2,000 spectators, the Scona Centre Community Club's Annual Winter Carnival and speed-skating invitation meet was held at the Scona Centre rink last night. It was one of the most successful events ever staged by the Club and the interest shown augers well for the future.

Westmount garnered a major share of the laurels in the speed-skating competitions that attracted well over 100 entries. All events were keenly contested and Scona Centre, Rossdale, and Garneau were well represented in the prize list.

Various novelty and fancy costume events were held and the crowning of Irene Yule as Queen of the carnival added color to the program. Several members of the Glenora Skating Club gave a lovely exhibition of figure-skating.

FAST TIME

One of the highlights of the evening was an exhibition 500-metre race against time by Blanche Tiviotdale of Westmount, provincial junior speed-skating champion. She covered the course in 56 seconds flat. She is now preparing for the Western Canada Championship meet to be held in Winnirpeg later in the year.

THE WINNERS

Major point-winners in the various events were:

Ladies' events: Shirley Holland, Nellie Howard, Edith Foster and Helena Hall, all of Westmount; Jennie Keech and Leora Niddrie of Scona; and [illegible] of Garneau.

Spotlighting the Sport Girl

ANOTHER move was made last week in the checkerboard game of rule-or-ruin that is now underway in the Women's Amateur Athletic Federation. This latest move has been made by certain Ontario interests. Some time will now be required to figure out the puzzle presented. The root of all these moves and counter moves is Ontario's insistent demand for representation on the W.A.A.F. executive in proportion to the number of Ontario girl athletes registered as compared to other provinces.

Such proportional representation is not provided for in the W.A.A.F. constitution. Ontario attempted to push its demands through the annual meeting at Winnipeg, but it was decided that a mail vote of branches and affiliated bodies would have to be taken first. This was done and Secretary Irene Wall, of Montreal, announced that the result was a tie and that no change in the constitution would be made.

Many thought that the federation would accordingly proceed about its rightful business of encouraging and assisting girls' sports as a whole throughout the Dominion. However, President Edith MacKenzie, of Winnipeg, has just launched a bold play that plunges the W.A.A.F. right back into the original contentious question raised by Ontario. This bold play is her announcement that Saskatchewan should have a vote before the matter is disposed of.

Saskatchewan was not allowed a ballot in the first mail vote because it had not paid its annual fees. Now Miss MacKenzie overrules the decision of the annual meeting on this point. No announcement has been received here as to whether or not Saskatchewan has paid up, when such payment was made and by whom. From all information available here, including the A.A.U. redbook, a change in constitution requires a majority vote of at least two-thirds. The famous amateur hockey changes made a few years ago are examples.

Miss Wall, on election as secretary, stated that she was willing to carry on provided there was no official interference with her regular duties. However right after the annual meeting, Manitoba demanded that chartered accountant should audit the registrations posted with Miss Wall. The writer feels that this can only be taken as an intended reflection on the re-elected secretary, or other provincial officials.

This column has pointed out before that Miss MacKenzie's election was made possible by Ontario. Reports of her subsequent visit to Ontario and consultations with known factionists in that province do not make for a feeling of unity and confidence throughout the federation. Though Ontario threatened to drop out of the federation on December 31 if the mail vote did not go its way, nothing like this has publicly taken place. Is it possible that Ontario officials knew in advance what would happen in January?

Because thieves broke into the players' dressing room during a game the manager of the Port Arthur Bearcats hockey team thought to allow his girl friend to hold the keys during a recent Saturday game. After the game, as he asked her for the keys, she discovered her purse had been stolen. The keys of course were in the purse!

Myrtle Cook writes of a meeting of the Montreal Olympic ladies' softball team, a sort of finishing up for 1938 and talking over 1939 prospects. "The club was in a generous mood and the prize table looked like a hang over from Christmas. Everything there from silk stockings to a can of coffee!

Each player was given the privilege of naming her own club gift, and apparently none of the girls have hope chests. Not one request for a pair of pillow slips or a dozen tea towels. But [illegible] golf clubs, shoes, sweaters, dress lengths, jackets, etc. No one asked for a new bat."

A northern New York resort advertises 600-feet ski tows, large area of exciting slopes, etc., etc and a shelter to serve hamburgers and lunches—IF IT SNOWS. And then continues: "So come up next week end—IF IT DOESN'T RAIN—and bring your skis, toboggans and friends." Rare candor in that ady.

INQUIRY INTO PIPELINE COSTS WILL CONTINUE

CALGARY, Jan. 28.—Mr. Justice A. A. McGillivray, chairman of the royal commission probing Alberta's oil industry, Friday announced that the pipeline phase of the inquiry would last at least another week.

The commission charged with determining a fair and equitable rate for transporting oil through Royalite Oil Company's pipelines from Turner Valley to Calgary Friday received further evidence of Royalite accounts from Arthur Maw, auditor of Price, Waterhouse and Company.

J. W. Taylor of Toronto, auditor of the same firm, will give additional evidence today in regard to his opinion that Royalite should be allowed a 20 per cent return on its investment during the next 10 years and at the same time be given refund of the present capital investment.

Westerner Has Novel Idea For Street De-icer

TORONTO, Jan. 28—An idea for keeping Toronto's streets free from ice and snow came from Silton, Sask., Friday, and evoked a non-committal "no comment" from Mayor Ralph C. Day. The idea, contained in a letter from J. Cameron Smith, involved steam pipes laid beneath the pavement to keep its temperature just above freezing.

"Thus falling snow would be melted immediately and the resulting water carried off by the drainage system, and ice formation would be prevented," wrote Smith, who described himself as an "idea man". He stated cost of operation would not be high, although a "fairly large outlay would be required for installation."

Smith said he could not supply a detailed plan, because he was not an engineer. He said Toronto might make the project self-liquidating by selling heat to occupants of buildings abutting on streets served by such a system. Then, he contended, the scheme would be eligible for a federal loan at low interest rates.

The prairie idea exporter also maintained considerable employment would be provided if his scheme were implemented.

Broomhall

New highs made at Liverpool yesterday on the May position. The demand for Canadian wheat from countries other than the United Kingdom has been a sustaining influence upon shippers prices. This has checked the English buying of Canadian wheat and diverted the demand to Australian afloat cargoes this week. The farmers in Australia are still holding on to their wheat and offering sparingly. The afloat cargoes have been well absorbed recently and shipments to the Orient increasing. Vladivostock is reported to have taken five to eight cargoes of Australian wheat and flour for the army, besides the large sales of flour to China reported last week which are keeping the millers busy for two months. When it is realized that this country exported as much as 135,000,000 bushels in 1938 and 105,000,000 in 1937 and that the surplus this year is placed at a maximum of 95,000,000 bushels of which already over 15,000,000 bushels have been exported besides the recent large sales to China and Vladivostock the balance of free wheat in this country is not burdensome. Actual shipments from Australia and the Argentine this week totalled 4,897,000 bushels, compared to 4,294,000 a week ago, up 603,000 bushels. The combined surpluses of these two countries are reckoned to be near 300,000,000 bushels, which means an average weekly export of 5,480,000 bushels, or rather more than 50 per cent of the world probable requirements for the year compared to 38 per cent during the 1938 calendar year. The visible stocks in the Argentine increased 700,000 bushels this week, but the grain board is now reported to be selling to exporters more freely so that some price decline may be anticipated shortly.

SPRATT HEADS ANGLO-CANUCK OIL COMPANIES

Replaces F. P. Byrne On Directorate Of Six Associate Concerns

CALGARY, Jan. 28.—Shareholders at meetings of six Anglo-Canadian Oil Company's associated companies Friday named a directorate of three to conduct their business and also approved annual reports.

[illegible] Petroleums Limited, Frontier Royalties Limited, Sundance Royalties Limited, Prairie Royalties Limited, Foundation Royalties Limited and Monarch Royalties Limited, each accepted the resignation of their president, F. P. Byrne, who is also vice-president and managing director of Anglo-Canadian.

REPLACES BYRNE

J. Grant Spratt of Calgary was named to replace Mr. Byrne on the directorate of each company. J. G. Gemmell, of Calgary, secretary of the associate companies, and W. G. Egbert of Calgary, are other members of the board.

One of the directors will be named president of the six companies in the near future.

Mr. Byrne resigned as director of the associate companies because of extensive "wild cat" work undertaken by Anglo-Canadian, he said.

Shareholders were told that Anglo-Canadian planned to submit a brief to the Dominion income tax department urging concessions be granted to relieve high rates of assessment against oil companies at least until funds expended on drilling programs have been returned.

Annual meetings of two other associate companies, Spy Hill and [illegible] Royalties and one of Anglo-Canadian's subsidiaries, Westflank Oil Company, will be held here today.

MUSIC COMEDY PRESENTED BY VARSITY GROUP

The Yeoman of the Guard Is Triumph by Philharmonic Society

To the applause of an overflow audience Gilbert and Sullivan's magnum opus, The Yeomen of the Guard, was presented at Convocation hall, University of Alberta, Friday night by the U. of A. Philharmonic Society. The production was a triumph of all concerned.

The Yeomen of the Guard will be repeated Saturday and Monday [illegible].

WARMEST PRAISE

The U. of A. Philharmonic organization merits the warmest possible praise for keeping the standard of Gilbert and Sullivan flying, as, if memory [illegible] correct, this is the [illegible] of the works of this duo the U. of A. has staged, The Mikado, The Pirates of Penzance and The Gondoliers being the previous productions. Opportunities to see the works of these two mighty creators of [illegible] are [illegible] and the U. of A. deserves a [illegible] vote of thanks for keeping the series going.

Just for the record, it may be mentioned that The Yeomen was the ninth in the series of operas from the pens of Gilbert and Sullivan and was first produced at the Savoy theatre, London, on Oct. 3, 1888.

His plot is invested with pure pathos and his characters are not only imbued with [illegible] but they are [illegible]. Many of them might have walked out of Macaulay's History of England [illegible]. Gilbert's story seems to reintroduce [illegible] that they have [illegible].

There are many gems in the opera, such as "Were I Thy Bride," "Free From His Fetters," "Is Life a Boon," the first four bars of which are [illegible] on Sullivan's monument on the Thames Embankment in London, "Tower Green" and many others. The [illegible] of "Were I Thy Bride" is a model of [illegible] orchestration.

STAGING

The staging was on a high plane. The scenery was excellent, as was the costuming. Over all [illegible] was evidence of careful, painstaking preparation. Chorus and principals showed they had thrown themselves into their work with a will.

[illegible] Docherty as Sir Richard Cholmondeley was impressive in appearance and sang most acceptably.

James Saks as Colonel Fairfax acquitted himself [illegible] little heights in his singing of those two "plums" of the score, "Is Life a Boon" and "Free From His Fetters." His acting, too, was thoroughly in keeping with the part.

Albert Swann as Sergeant Meryll and George Lambert as his son Leonard, both registered [illegible] roles.

W. G. Stillman won new laurels for his already heavily studded crown with his interpretation of Jack Point.

PROFESSIONAL CALIBRE

Jack [illegible] as Wilfred [illegible] was [illegible] with the best ever given [illegible] U. of A.

Margaret Hu[illegible] as Elsie Maynard [illegible]. She is a most valuable asset to [illegible].

[illegible] Williams as Phoebe Meryll [illegible] "Were I Thy Bride" and [illegible] "When Maiden [illegible]."

Marion Naneck [illegible] Dame Carruthers [illegible] Rea as Kate; Sandy Patterson as a Headsman, Roy Anderson as the First Yeoman; Mac Campbell as the Second Yeoman; [illegible].

DRAMATIC DIRECTOR

Tom [illegible] as dramatic director, his work on this occasion being thorough [illegible] keeping [illegible] to his credit.

Atha Paul A[illegible], who conducted, did so with [illegible].

"You were just holding $70,000 worth of gold," said Brintnell. The sack contained the first two bricks poured by Consolidated this fall—weighed 125 pounds. And yet there was no fuss, no bother, no armed cars or even armed guards, and nobody was paying any attention to it. It might just as well have been a bag of beans.

Stories like this are countless. So [illegible] every northerner has for private property. And they are proud of the north. "Say a good word for the north," is the popular way of saying Au revoir.

Rudy Heuss, Canadian Airways, arrived from Yellowknife late Friday with Mrs. William Graham, Spud Arsenault, and express.

Snow Is Forecast In Edmonton Area: 4 Degrees Is Low

Points in the near north were blanketed with a thin coat of new snow overnight, and Edmonton received a small share of the white stuff, .03 inches falling over the city. Forecast predicts a possibility of more light snow along with little change in temperature.

Highest point the mercury reached in the city Friday was 16 above, registered at 3 and 4 p.m. Low reading Saturday was four above at 4 a.m. Average temperature Friday was 11.5 above, while on the same date last year it was 14.5 above.

Temperatures in the [illegible] showed a 20-degree range, [illegible] reading being 12 below and the high eight above.

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

THE AFGHAN HOUND

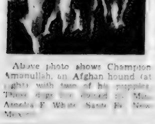
This breed, one of the purest and most ancient, is the product of natural development. As yet little known in this country, it belongs to the greyhound family, but has a long, silky coat with especially heavy feathering on the ears, legs, tail, legs, and top of the head, where it forms a kind of top-knot.



Above photo shows Champion Amanullah, an Afghan hound (at right) with two of his puppies. These dogs are owned by Mrs. Amelia F. White, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

Early information on the breed is very meagre and the Afghans themselves seem to have little knowledge of its origin. They claim with all seriousness, however, that Noah took a pair of these dogs on the Ark. This statement, is perhaps, not as fantastic as one might suppose for the breed is undoubtedly closely related to the Saluki or gazelle hound, of Egypt, Syria and Persia which, in turn, is known to have flourished in the near East [illegible]. It is difficult to determine which breed is the older or whether the Afghan found its way west to become the Saluki or vice versa.

[illegible] used for hunting for centuries [illegible]. Their game consists of deer, jackal, [illegible].

IRRITABLE DOGS

Many people write to me complaining that their dogs are [illegible] unpredictable. In most cases the dogs so described are admittedly mongrels. Is it strange that an animal [illegible] whose antecedents one knows little or nothing and whose very existence and upbringing are wholly fortuitous, should be faulty or ill-tempered in many respects? Another argument for the acquisition of a pure-bred whenever possible.

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of those dealing with sickness, if you will write him at Tenacre, White Plains, New York. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

HERD IS HEAD OF LEAGUE ON WORLD PEACE

Annual Conference Here Discusses Spain and China Conflicts

A. M. Herd was re-elected president of the Canadian League for Peace and Democracy at the annual meeting held Friday night in the Macdonald hotel. The conference was attended by more than 30 delegates and a large number of visitors.

Main discussion was on the annual report in which the secretary, George A. LeBeau, said people must wake up to the realization of the threat to their democratic liberties both at home and abroad. Need for a stronger peace movement to bring before the governments the wants of the peace loving people of our country also was spoken of.

Four main resolutions were passed dealing with the alarming situation in Spain and China, the padlock law, the placing of an embargo on war materials to aggressor nations and the boycotting of all goods made in Germany, Japan and Italy.

Mrs. W. A. McConkey gave an address to the conference dealing with the resolutions passed at the recent British Commonwealth Peace congress to which she was a delegate.

Mrs. F. H. Rinwood was re-elected vice president. Those elected to the council are, Rabbi J. J. Eisen, Ben Hager, Mrs. Grace Knight, B. C. Davison, D. Sandilands, Mrs. H. A. Cox, I. Gwillian, H. Swanson, George A. LeBeau, Miss Celia Goldstick, R. Small, T. Kinch, H. Gerry, D. Kerr, R. Kayton and Joe McKenzie.

CITY APARTMENT CHANGES HANDS: IS BOUGHT HERE

Purchase of the Harmony Apartments by the Gelber Credit House, Edmonton, from the White Lunch Company, Calgary, was announced by N. Gelber, agent for the Edmonton company. The purchase price was not disclosed. The new purchaser took possession of the property Friday.

No immediate changes will be made in the operation of the apartments, it was stated, as some of the leases on the building space will not expire until next year.

The Harmony Apartments were purchased by the Calgary company in 1928 for $100,000 and for a time a White Lunch cafeteria was operated on the ground floor of the building, the upstairs being given over to residential suites.

Future plans for the building will be announced shortly Mr. Gelber stated. Some time ago it was indicated that hotel interests were considering applying for a hotel license for the premises.

Through The Mill

Two men, one of them less than two weeks out of Fort Saskatchewan, went into a rooming house Thursday night, slipped into an unoccupied room and drifted off to slumber. Police, however, receiving a complaint, called around there Friday morning and woke them. Charged with being vagrants, the couple appeared in city police court Saturday morning, pleaded guilty to the charge and were each sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Wrecking the interior of cafes is a good old western pastime, but it is still against the law. A Glenevis farmer who kicked up too much fuss in a city restaurant was charged with creating a disturbance, and when he appeared in court Saturday he was fined $10 and costs.

Have You Seen

Charles Miller, who practiced law in Edmonton about 1912, and who lived at Fraser flats and later at Ross flats.

Clement Miller, believed to be a taxi driver in this city.

Both these men are sought by a brother in Lytton, B.C.

Mrs. Guy Williamson, whose husband died five or six years ago, and who is believed to be living somewhere in Alberta. She is sought by Mrs. Rose M. Taylor, of Plainfield, New Jersey.

Any information concerning these persons should be sent to Edmonton city police or to the nearest R.C.M.P. detachment.

Municipality Is Asked To Bring Report To Judge

His Honor Judge J. L. Crawford in district court Friday instructed a representative of the Crown municipality to bring a report from that body supporting their request that an aged relief recipient living in Edmonton be returned to live at Lacombe.

The relief recipient told the court he was existing on $6 monthly relief given him by the municipality. He was able to live on that in the city, but would not be able to exist on it if he had to return to Lacombe. He got his room for 15 cents nightly, he stated. The case was adjourned until February 10 to enable the municipality to make its application.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD
by WILLIAM FERGUSON
THROUGH THE SUMMER MONTHS, THE MARMOTS LAZILY SUN THEMSELVES ATOP CONSPICUOUS ROCKS, WHERE THEY CAN WATCH FOR ENEMIES.
The MARMOTS.
EASTERN TOURISTS VISITING THE ROCKY MOUNTAINS IN SUMMER FREQUENTLY ARE SURPRISED TO SEE HUGE WOODCHUCKS CROSS THEIR PATHS AT AN AWKWARD, LOPING PACE.
WHEN AUTUMN COMES, THEY FEED HEAVILY AND BECOME EXCESSIVELY FAT! THEN THEY RETIRE TO THEIR DENS AND CURL UP FOR A SLEEP OF SOME SIX MONTHS DURATION.
COPR. 1939 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
THESE RODENTS ARE COUSINS OF THE EASTERN WOODCHUCK, AND ARE KNOWN IN THE WEST AS MARMOTS.
HIGH UP IN THE ROCKY GLACIAL MORAINE, LIVES THE MOST FAMOUS OF THESE ANIMALS, THE HOARY MARMOT OR WHISTLER. HIS SHRILL BLASTS CAN BE HEARD A MILE AWAY.
THERE IS NO FANCIFUL LEGEND CONNECTED WITH THE MARMOT'S AWAKENING, SUCH AS THAT WHICH MAKES THE EASTERN "GROUND HOG" FRONT PAGE NEWS.

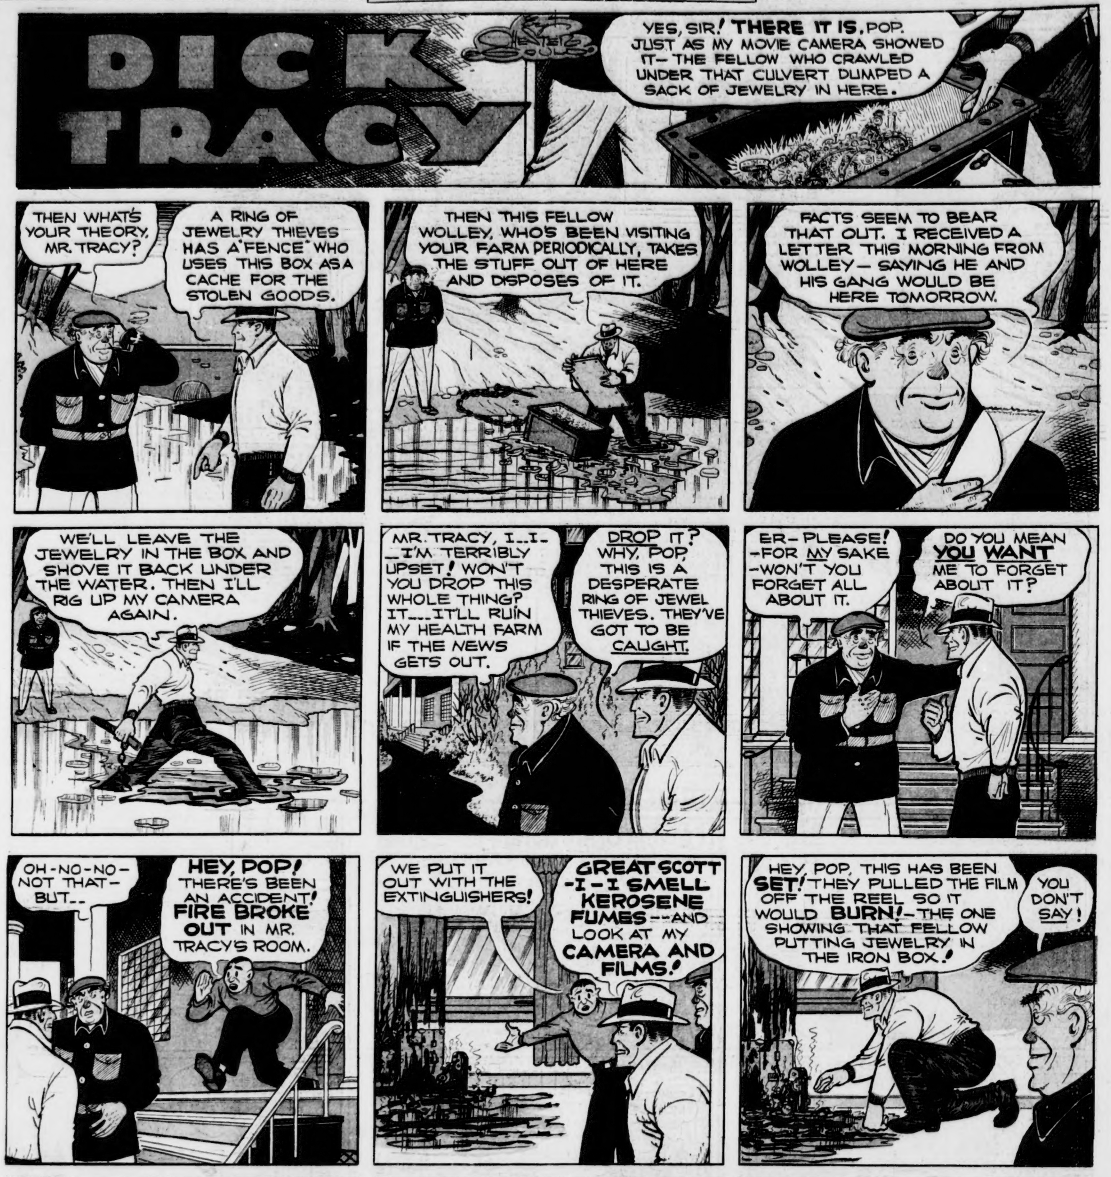
"This Curious World" old world of ours is full of strange people; strange animals; strange facts and strange fancies. Old Mother Nature works wisely and well, but sometimes her ways are too deep, too for us to fathom. But there's a way to keep in touch with the vagaries of nature and learn the whys and wherefores of her strange ways. Daily in The Bulletin, "This Curious World"



DICK TRACY
Chester Gould
YES, SIR! THERE IT IS, POP. JUST AS MY MOVIE CAMERA SHOWED IT— THE FELLOW WHO CRAWLED UNDER THAT CULVERT DUMPED A SACK OF JEWELRY IN HERE.
THEN WHAT'S YOUR THEORY, MR. TRACY?
A RING OF JEWELRY THIEVES HAS A "FENCE" WHO USES THIS BOX AS A CACHE FOR THE STOLEN GOODS.
THEN THIS FELLOW WOLLEY, WHO'S BEEN VISITING YOUR FARM PERIODICALLY, TAKES THE STUFF OUT OF HERE AND DISPOSES OF IT.
FACTS SEEM TO BEAR THAT OUT. I RECEIVED A LETTER THIS MORNING FROM WOLLEY— SAYING HE AND HIS GANG WOULD BE HERE TOMORROW.
WE'LL LEAVE THE JEWELRY IN THE BOX AND SHOVE IT BACK UNDER THE WATER. THEN I'LL RIG UP MY CAMERA AGAIN.
MR. TRACY, I..I.. ..I'M TERRIBLY UPSET! WON'T YOU DROP THIS WHOLE THING? IT...IT'LL RUIN MY HEALTH FARM IF THE NEWS GETS OUT.
DROP IT? WHY, POP, THIS IS A DESPERATE RING OF JEWEL THIEVES. THEY'VE GOT TO BE CAUGHT.
ER— PLEASE! —FOR MY SAKE —WON'T YOU FORGET ALL ABOUT IT.
DO YOU MEAN YOU WANT ME TO FORGET ABOUT IT?
OH-NO-NO— NOT THAT— BUT—
HEY, POP! THERE'S BEEN AN ACCIDENT! FIRE BROKE OUT IN MR. TRACY'S ROOM.
WE PUT IT OUT WITH THE EXTINGUISHERS!
GREAT SCOTT —I—I SMELL KEROSENE FUMES —AND LOOK AT MY CAMERA AND FILMS!
HEY, POP, THIS HAS BEEN SET! THEY PULLED THE FILM OFF THE REEL SO IT WOULD BURN!—THE ONE SHOWING THAT FELLOW PUTTING JEWELRY IN THE IRON BOX!
YOU DON'T SAY!
THAT WAS TREMENDOUSLY VALUABLE EVIDENCE!
WE NOTICED THE SMOKE RIGHT AFTER YOU LEFT THE HOUSE TO MEET MR. TRACY, POP.
NOW WHO IN THE WORLD COULD HAVE—SOMEBODY RIGHT IN THIS HOUSE KNOWS EVERY MOVE I'VE MADE! —AND AS FOR YOU, KEEP THIS CONVERSATION TO YOURSELF.
YES SIR!
AND THERE DOESN'T SEEM TO BE A SINGLE CLEW, DOES THERE?
OH-OH. MAYBE THERE IS AT THAT, POP! THE FIRE BUG SEEMS TO HAVE CAUGHT HIS CLOTHING ON THIS RAZOR STROP HOOK. YEAH! HM...!! QUITE A SUBSTANTIAL PIECE OF FABRIC!
